ROBBER CAPTURED AFTER HE TAKES WOMAN'S $1150

HE SAYS HE WAS BEFUDDLED BY DRINK

Pursued by Driver From Whom He Attempted to Steal Auto — Runs Into Policeman's Arms.

Edward L. Barrett, a painter, who says he resides at 1001 Bompart avenue, Webster Groves, made a terrible fizzle of robbing Mrs. Louis H. Ellwanger, 5451 Bates avenue, of a $1150 payroll outside her home today. She had carried the money from the Grant State Bank at 5014 Gravois avenue, to be used by her husband, a painting contractor, to pay off his employes.

Barrett got the money, but under pursuit he tossed it away and it was recovered. He was captured.

Drink caused the fizzle. In fact, the idea of the robbery arose in drink. He had gone to the Ellwanger home looking for work. "I was drunk; I don't know what I did," Richards explained.

Detectives Join in Chase.

When he encountered Mrs. Ellwanger in an areaway outside her home he pointed a pistol at her. Mrs. Ellwanger thinks he fired a shot at her. Gus Stumhofer, an automobile dearer at 5000 Gravois avenue, who was passing in his machine, thinks the shot was fired at him. At any rate, after snatching the money from Mrs. Ellwanger Barrett ran into the street and pointed the pistol at Stumhofer, demanding the use of the automobile for his escape. Stumhofer refused. Barrett turned and ran up the street. Stumhofer pursued him in the automobile.

At a saloon at 4301 Bates streets City Detectives Joseph Taylor and William Schneider were carrying out beer. Stumhofer yelled at them. They dropped the beer. Schneider got into Stumhofer's car, Taylor took the police car,' in which he had gone to the saloon, and the chase continued.

Runs Into Policeman's Arms.

Barrett never had a chance. He was wearing the white overhalls of his trade and he was too conspicuous a fugitive. His flight took him by the home of Policeman Guy F. Richardson at 4150 Corcordia avenue, which is 5700 west Morganford road.

Richardson ran out and enfolded Barrett in his arms. Detectives Taylor and Schneider, driving up, completed the subjugation.

They returned Barrett to Mrs. Ellwanger5s home. "He is the man," she said.

A boy came in. "And here is his pistol," he said.

"And the money," said a man who arrived a moment later.

Barrett had flung both away in his flight.

STEAMBOAT'S WAVES DROWN SWIMMER DRIFTING ON LOG

Arthur Tellman Sinks Before Companions Can Reach Him in Rowboat.

Riding a log into rollers made by a passing steamboat, Arthur Tellman, 20 years old, of 3325A Klein street, was drowned in the Mississippi River yesterday at Bremen avenue.

Tellman and four others had gone in swimming. They were drifting downstream on a log when the "Golden Eagle" approached, northbound.

The others left the log and struck out for shore, but Tellman remained. As the rollers swept the log Tellman either lost his hold or decided to swim ashore. His companions saw him struggling and set out to rescue him in a rowboat, but were unable to reach him. The body has not been recovered.

"Just Too Good for Me," Says American Girl of Lenglen

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 12.—Suzanne Lenglen is still supreme. The great French player today defeated Miss Mary K. Browne, thrice American title holder, in the singles final of the international hard court tennis championship. The score was 6—1, 6—0.

Miss Browne was able to take only the second game of the first set. The American made a gallant stand against her scintillating opponent and scored many beautiful placements by going to the net. Suzanne, however, was unbeatable. She used her famous tactics of running her opponent back and forth along the base line, seeming to put the ball wherever she wanted it.

Rain Makes Court Slippery.

Rain fell during the entire first set. The court was slippery and the ball heavy. The point score of the first set:

Mlle. Lenglen....4 3 4 8 4 4 4—6
Miss Browne....2 5 2 6 0 1 2—1

The rain continued to fall until the fifth game of the second set, but, despite the slippery surface of the court, Mlle. Lenglen played almost faultlessly, seeming to gain in power as the match progressed.

Miss Browne tried valiantly, but her long experience in court tactics was of little avail against the Frenchwoman's brilliance, and she was able only to score an occasional point, some of them on seemingly lucky placements.

She threatened only once, in the sixth game, which she took to deuce and then to her advantage, on one beautiful placement and Suzanne's errors.

The French girl gained the advantage on Miss Browne's shot into the net, and finished the match with a placement.

Miss Browne went to the net in efforts to score, but Suzanne had a defense against that and forced the American back with well-placed lobs.

Score for Second Set.

The score: Second set—

Mlle Lenglen—
4 4 4 4 4 10—30—6

Miss Browne—
2 2 1 2 0 8—15—0

Rivals Chat Before Match.

"It wasn't the wet court or the heavy ball that did it," said Miss Browne, as she shook the hand of Mlle. Lenglen across the nets at the end of the match.

"She was just too good for me, that is the only explanation I have to offer," she added, as she turned to the reporters who had grouped about.

After she had congratulated the winner, the American girl walked to the box where Mlle. Lenglen's father and mother sat.

"Your daughter was marvelous," she told Mme. Lenglen. "You ought to be proud to be the mother of such a wonderful girl."

She was smiling as brightly as any spectator, and stopped to wish good luck to Vincent Richards and Howard Kinsey as they went on the court for their doubles match against Rene Lacoste and Jean Borotra.

Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Browne had chatted before the match. Each wished the other well, and both commented upon the soggy condition of the court.

"Are these for me?" asked the American girl with a smile as three Red Cross nurses, in flowing blue robes, passed.

"We both may need them," Suzanne smilingly replied.

Miss Browne, paired with Miss Elizabeth Ryan, was eliminated from the doubles by Mrs. L. A. Godfree and Miss Joan Collier of England, 5—7, 6—4, 6—2.

MAN AND WOMAN KILLED IN NEW YORK HOLDUP

Robbers Enter Office of Importing Firm and Fire When Command "Hands Up" Is Ignored.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—A man and woman were killed and another woman was seriously wounded when four armed robbers made an unsuccessful attempt today to make off with the payroll in the offices of the Sunglo company, wholesale importers.

Josephine Defrori, 20 years old, and Samuel Winterbottom, 50, were killed by the robbers' bullets, and Elizabeth Schumacher was seriously injured.

There were about 25 persons in the office when the robbers appeared with drawn revolvers and ordered that all hold up their hands. No one obeyed and the robbers opened fire and then fled.

MRS. LOEB PAYS FIRST VISIT TO SON IN PRISON

Finds Slayer of Bobbie Franks Worn From Confinement on His Twenty-first Birthday.

JOLIET, Ill., June 12.—Mrs. Albert Loeb greeted her son, Richard Loeb, serving a life term for the murder of Bobbie Franks for the first time yesterday since he entered the State prison.

She found her son thin, stoop-shouldered and obviously worn by nearly two years of confinement. It was his twenty-first birthday and his mother brought a large basket of food and sweet things for him. They embraced, the mother in tears, when they met in the interviewing room.

Mrs. Loeb, in tears after the interview, refused to talk. Her son, Ernest, accompanied her.

"I haven't much to tell you," Loeb told a reporter. "I don't want any publicity, the public has practically forgotten my name and I wish to keep it out of print."

Loeb said that he was about normal weight. He works in the prison yard as a sort of "straw boss."

FERGUSON LIKELY TO BE REINDICTED ON FRAUD CHARGE

Any True Bill Probably Will Be Based on General Statute, Carrying Prison Term.

SIDENER REFUSED TO INVOKE THIS LAW

Ignored Advice, Then, When First Action Failed, He Nolle-Prossed All the Remaining Cases.

Reindictment of Forrest Ferguson for his share in the frauds by which the Ferguson McKinney Manufacturing Co. was able to borrow more than $3,000,000 while in a failing condition is under consideration by Attorney-General Gentry.

Consideration of the case by the grand jury was resumed today as part of the general inquiry into the conduct of Circuit Attorney Sidener's office.

Any indictment which the grand jury may return probably will be under the general fraud statute, involving a penitentiary sentence of from two to seven years.

It was this statute that William O. Reeder, special prosecutor provided by bankers, advised should be invoked when the Ferguson case first went to a grand jury last autumn. John Bowcock, Assistant Circuit Attorney, backed by Circuit Attorney Sidener, however, insisted upon indictment under the statute penalizing false financial statements, and three indictments against Ferguson were returned under it.

Sidener Dropped Cases.

When the indictments were called in Circuit Court last April, Sidener nolle-prossed them. His action was prompted, he announced, by the instructed verdict of acquittal, given by Circuit Judge Mix a few days before in the trial of Ferguson upon an embezzlement charge, based upon his "borrowings" of more than $400,000 from the company by an I O U device.

Sidener told the court that the embezzlement charge was his strongest one against Ferguson and it having failed he was positive that the false statement charges likewise would fail.

This was contrary to the opinion of both Reeder and the bankers. Ferguson had admitted to them complicity with the late Murray Carleton in the false statements.

Testimony in the embezzlement trial of Ferguson disclosed that when audit time was approaching he caused his personal indebtedness to be covered up in an overalls account, entering the sum of his loans on the books as sales of overalls that never had been made.

This was, in effect, padding of the assets of the company and it was padded assets that enabled the company to make its large borrowings at banks.

Sidener Ignored Suggestions.

Sidener closed his ears to all suggestions of Reeder, who, at last, laid what he considered a proper indictment of Ferguson, based on the general fund statute, upon Sidener's desk and retired from the case. He told the bankers that Sidener's attitude made it impossible for him to render any service.

The grand jury yesterday heard the story of the collapse of the Ferguson-McKinney company, with its consequent losses of more than $2,000,000 and a wiping out of the holdings of all stockholders from those who are acquainted with all its ramifications.

These included members of the bankers' committee which investigated the frauds—Edward B. Pryor, president of the State National Bank; Richard S. Hawes, vice president of the First National Bank, and James McCluney of McCluney & Co., dealers in commercial paper.

Other witnesses were Alfred Baggott, confidential man for Murray Carleton; Joseph Malacek, cashier of the company, and two employes of Ernst & Ernst, certified accountants, whose examination of the company's books established the magnitude of the frauds and the methods by which they were accomplished. Reeder, the special prosecutor, also has been subpenaed to testify.

A witness today was B. F. Hargrove, an accountant employed by the National Association of Credit Men, who went over the company's books. Joseph Malacek also returned to the jury room.

THOUSANDS CHEER SEVEN CARDINALS IN NEW YORK CITY

Papal Legate and Party Welcomed by American Prelate — Primate of Ireland Also Arrives.

MOB FIGHTS TO KISS CHURCHMAN'S RING

Delegation Will Leave for Eucharistic Congress Wednesday — German Dignitary Due Next Week.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Seven Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Chuch gathered here today. Arriving from Europe, Cardinal Bonzano, envoy of Pope Pius XI to the International Eucharistic Congress in Chicago, and five other prelates yesterday entered the city with medieval splendor, acclaimed by thousands. They were welcomed officially by Cardinal Hayes of New York.

Cardinal Bonzano's colleagues included Cardinal O'Donnell, primate of Ireland; Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris; Cardinal Reig y Casanova, Archbishop of Toledo, Spain; Cardinal Czernoch, Archbishop of Strigonia, Hungary, and Cardinal Piffl, Archbishop of Vienna, all of whom will proceed to Chicago Wednesday on a special train.

Cardinal O'Donnell Arrives.

Cardinal O'Donnell arrived from Ireland on the President Roosevelt, while the five other members of the Sacred College came on the Aquitania.

Due to confusion at quarantine it was at first reported that Cardinal Faulhaber, Archbishop of Munich, also had arrived on the Aquitania, but it was announced this morning that Cardinal Faulhaber would arrive next week.

Entering an automobile at a pier, Cardinals Bonzano and Hayes were quickly surrounded by an enthusiastic throng, those nearest Cardinal Bonzano seizing his hand to kiss his ring. Police tried to hold back the rush, but ceased at a signal from the papal legate, who later halted the procession up Broadway at Fifth avenue to permit a party of New York firemen to kiss the ring.

At St. Patrick's Cathedral, cheering thousands were stilled as the two Cardinals, clad in their flame-colored robes, paused to bestow a blessing.

Fireboats Greet Irish Primate.

Fire boats saluted Cardinal O'Donnell of Ireland with their high water screens, and his boyhood friend, Chief Kenlon of the New York Fire Department, saluted him with, "Caed mille failte (Ten thousand times welcome)."

The six visiting Cardinals enjoyed a day of comparative quiet today after the pomp and excitement of their arrival. During the morning, Cardinals Dubois, Casanova, Czernoch and Piffl visited Cardinal Hayes and paid their respects. Cardinal Bonzano was resting at the home of Nicholas F. Brady at Roslyn, L. I. He dined last night with Cardinal Hayes.

Tomorrow the Cardinals, and the 100 or more other prlates who are in the city as members of their parties, will attend services in St. Patrick's Cathedral.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 12.—The Pope's message to the Chicago Eucharistic Congress will be read by Cardinal Bonzano, from the radio station of the Paulist Fathers in New York, according to the newspapers. It is added that the Pope has no intention of broadcasting the message directly from the Vatican.

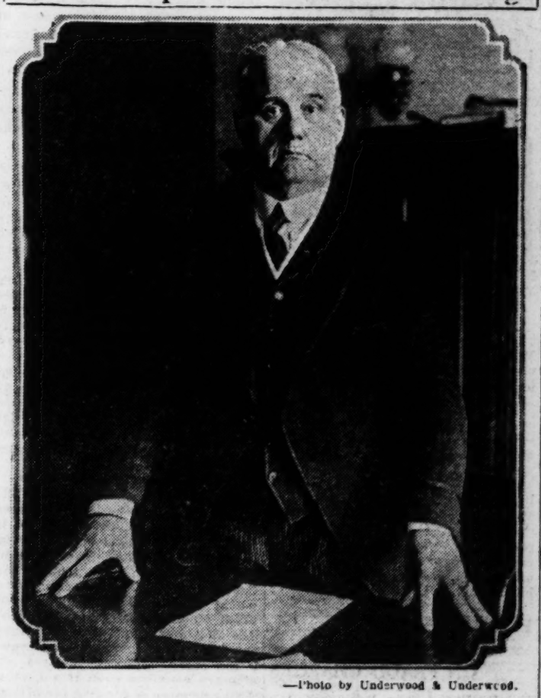

PRESIDENT TO LET HIS WIFE PICK THEIR TEMPORARY HOME

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Coolidge will let Mrs. Coolidge select their temporary home while the White House is being repaired, but it must be near the executive offices. The President will have the work postponed until March, after adjournment of Congress from the short session, to permit use of the White House for the regular winter social functions.

Obviously Mr. Coolidge has no fear that the old roof will tumble down on his head. Not satisfied with reports of army engineers that putting a new roof on the house would necessitate tearing into the second floor, the President called in a Congressman who also is a contractor and his opinion was the same as the army engineer.

Spent for Pepper	$1,048,000
Spent for Phichot	195,000
Spent for Vare	181,000
Grand Total	$1,422,000

BY CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—A vivid first-hand description of the pay-off at Pepper and Vare Pittsburg headquarters, which followed the recent orgy of vote-buying through the subterfuge of employing "watchers" at the polls, was given the Reed investigating committee today by Frederick Beutel, a law professor of the University of Pittsburg.

Beutel was for Gov. Pinchot in the three-cornred "millionaires' primary" of May 18 that resulted in the nomination of Representative Vare for the United States Senate.

Beutel wound up his detailed story of Pittsburg election corruption by asserting that the balance of power in that city could always be bought.

"Bad Even for Pittsburg."

"I am thoroughly convinced that it was bought this last time," he added.

"Was that the rottenest election you have ever had?" asked Senator Reed. "That's very superlative, 'the rottenest election in Pittsburg,'" said the witness. "I'll say it was bad. It was bad, even for Pittsburg."

Beutel said that the Pittsburg organization functioned in the primary, as a whole, for Senator Pepper.

Out of curiosity, Beutel, on the day after the primary, went to the Pepper and Vare headquarters to see the "watchers" getting their pay. His observations, he said, convinced him that the estimate of 50,000 watchers on the Vare and Pepper payrolls in Allegheny County was not far wrong.

He told first of the scene at the Hotel Henry, where the Pepper hired men were getting theirs.

"There was a paymaster behind a table," he said, "and the workers were lined up. They were coming in one at a time and getting the cash. I should say that the line was about 150 to 200 feet long.

"The line was there continuously on Wednesday and Thursday. I went back Friday and found a smaller line, but they were still paying continuously. On Saturday there was still a scattering line.

"I got out my watch and estimated that they were being paid at the rate of 200 to 300 an hour. Sometimes there was a roll of money already made up for the applicant."

Paid in Rolls.

"So they paid in rolls," asked Reed. "Oh, yes," replied Beutel. "It was the exception when a man got a single bill."

"They were mostly $10 bills," he continued. "I saw one man with a roll this big." He picked up an ash tray from the committee table.

"And that object," said Reed for the record, "is about three inches in diameter." "Yes," replied the witness. The man had about all he could hold in his hand."

"There was a paymaster and he had two or three assistants. Apparently they paid on certificates or on little pieces of paper, two or three inches square. I think it was

BROOKHART MISUNDERSTOOD ABOUT LIMIT ON PROFITS

Says He Advocated 5 Per Cent Maximum Returns Only for Co-Operatives.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Smith W. Brookhart, Republican nominee for the United States Senate from Iowa, said yesterday that he had been misunderstood in recent speeches on earnings that should be allowed in business. He said he had not advocated that returns on private capital be limited by law to 5 per cent, as some had understood, but that the 5 per cent limit should be applied for co-operatives only.

He said that in a Mason City speech he advocated that 5 per cent should be the proper limit of return on co-operative enterprises, but said nothing about commercial business.

The Chicago Journal today published a statement by Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa, Republican senatorial nominee, that a large number of "influential Republican leaders" had approached him with suggestions for "harmony."

RECALL SIGNATURES NOW 50 PER CENT ABOVE REQUIREMENT

Addition of 423 Names Today Brings Total to 90,331, Committee Announces.

Signatures to petitions for the recall of Mayor Miller, as announced by the Miller Recall Committee, are now 50 per cent in excess of the minimum required for an election on the question. There are always some faulty signatures on such petitions, so that a margin is needed.

Some time ago the committee set its goal at 120,000, which is just 352 less than the number of votes cast for Miller for Mayor. The objective has not been changed, although the daily rate of addition of signatures has dropped greatly.

Today, it was announced, there are 90,331 signatures, 423 having been added in the last 24 hours. The minimum required is 60,456. Whether the distribution of signatures by wards to meet Charter provisions has been attained has not been announced. There is some time available still before it would be necessary to file the petitions to have the recall acted on at the August primary or November election.

DIES AFTER TOOTH EXTRACTION

Alex Laughlin Jr. Did Not Regain Consciousness.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 12.—Alex Laughlin Jr., son-in-law of W. L. Mellon, new Republican State chairman of Pennsylvania, died in a hospital here today following extraction of a tooth. He went to the hospital earlier in the day to have the tooth taken out and died without regaining consciousness after an anaesthetic was administered.

Mr. Laughlin was president of the Central Tube Co., with a plant near Beaver, Pa., and was associated with a number of other business concerns. He was a graduate of Yale and was a veteran of the World War. He was 36 years old.

CROWN PRINCE CALLS ON INJURED POLICEMAN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Motor Cycle Policemen George H. Plate, slightly injured by the automobile of Crown Princess Louise, received a call from the future King of Sweden yesterday. Crown Prince Gustavus Adolphus wanted to learn of Plate's condition.

The royal limousine drove up to the policeman's home in Jamaica, Long Island, last night, stared at by all the neighbors, and Plate was surprised on opening the door to see the Prince with outstretched hand.

"This is my wife," said Policeman Plate, introducing her. "Madeline, meet the Crown Prince of Sweden."

The Crown Prince shook hands with Mrs. Plate, with her mother, Mrs. Mary Van Gilluwe, and with 7-months-old Jean Florence Plate, whom he praised as a remarkable baby. While dignitaries and officials of his suite waited at the door, the royal visitor remained a quarter of an hour at Plate's invitation to get acquainted with the family.

The officer was thrown from his machine and knocked unconscious when he stopped suddenly in front of the Crown Princess' automobile to avoid running into a crippled youth who was crossing the street. He was escorting her highness' machine to the Brooklyn Museum.

The Crown Princess took Plate's address and waited at a private hospital to which he was taken until she was assured that his injuries were not serious.

"He's all right, that fellow," was Gov. Smith's characterization of the Crown Prince after they met today at City Hall.

"How are you?" the Governor asked when they met.

"I'm fine. I've had a splendid time here," said the Crown Prince. "This is a wonderful city."

"He could be elected president of Sweden if it were a republic," said the Governor, after the Prince had gone. "He's all right, that fellow."

$108,000 SPENT THERE FOR VARE

One of His Managers Testifies That Strong Box Contained $70,000 at One Time.

Post-Dispatch Bureau.
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Questioning the men who handled the money and made up the books for Senator Pepper and Representative Vare in the millionaires' Republican senatorial primary in Pennsylvania, Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the Special Senate Committee investigating campaign expenses, last night uncovered the sordid details of Washington's latest political scandal.

Five witnesses—two for Representative Vare, two for Senator Pepper and one noncombatant—were interrogated by the Missourian who appeared unmindful of the fact that he made a speech against Senator Pepper, and therefore, for Vare, the week preceding the primary. It was an impartial inquiry.

E. M. Kenna, treasurer of the Pittsburg Vare committee, and E. R. Martin, his assistant, were recalled to amplify statements they had made during the afternoon session. Samuel J. Topley, treasurer of the Pepper-Fisher Allegheny County committee, and W. J. Newbold, son-in-law of Senator Pepper and treasurer of his personal committee, gave testimony which illuminated the previous statements of W. L. Mellon and Senator Pepper.

F. A. Fichel, chairman of a Vare-Beidleman committee, swore that his was a purely honorary title, that he had not made a campaign contribution and that he knew nothing of the Pennsylvania political situation beyond what he had heard at the hearings. He was excused. Beidleman was the defeated candidate for Governor.

17,120 Workers Employed.

From Topley, Reed elicited figures which indicated that the Pepper-Fisher committee had spent $231,000 for their candidates in Allegheny County alone, although the original budget called for only $160,000. Topley stated that 17,120 Pepper-Fisher workers—11,496 "watchers" and 5624 "messengers"—had been employed on primary day at $5 a head. This would account for $85,600 of the expenditures.

Kenna, treasurer of the Vare headquarters in Pittsburg, and Martin, his assistant, testified that their committee had spent $108,000 in Pittsburg and had hired 5600 "watchers." In true Pennsylvania fashion, this committee had a strong box at the William Penn Hotel, which contained as high as $70,000 in cash at one time. This money was paid out or deposited when necessary. Most of it came from the State Campaign Committee, Kenna said.

Topley's testimony was by far the most interesting, for it augmented the figure W. L. Mellon, nephew of the Secretary of the Treasury, gave the investigating committee Thursday night.

Mellon told about the $160,000 original budget, but acounted for only $113,000 as contributions and $47,000 as a deficit. Topley added $53,000 obtained by notes, which made the amount of money received $196,000. He said the committee had on hand $36,500 in cash, but faced a deficit of $46,500, in addition to $25,000 in bills yet unreceived. This would make a total expenditure of $231,000, but no direct statement was obtained from Topley, who, seemingly befuddled by the figures, made no answer to Reed's statement of them.

Pepper's Treasurer Testifies.

At his own request, Newbold, treasurer of Senator Pepper's personal committee, was excused after a short statement. He said it was necessary for him to return to Philadelphia at once to compile his financial statement called for by the Pennsylvania law.

He stated that his committee had collected about $87,000 from personal friends of Senator Pepper and had expended between $25,000 and $30,000, which was covered by loans. In addition to this, he said, there were outstanding debts amounting to about $2000. The total expenditures revealed by these figures were approximately $114,000, the amount stated by Senator Pepper in his testimony yesterday.

After Newbold had declared he had nothing to do with money collected by the county committees, he was excused by Senator Reed, with the understanding that he would be recalled next week for a comprehensive examination.

Reed's Rap at Wheeler.

Only once during the evening did Reed seem to show any personal bias. During his examination of Kenna he read a list of 10 or a dozen names and asked if any of the persons had contributed to Vare's campaign fund. When he was assured none had, he remarked, "I am glad to hear that. This list was sent to me by our distinguished friend, Wayne B. Wheeler, with the notation that these men had contributed to Representative Vare's campaign because he was 'wet.' Doctor Wheeler was as far from the truth as he usually is."

sought leave of Referee in Bankruptcy Coles to sue the Boatmen's National Bank for $71,631.23, alleged to be a preferential payment made to the bank by the company immediately prior to its collapse. Coles indicated he would give a decision Monday.

The Ferguson-McKinney company owed the bank $300,000 and the amount named in the proposed suit was paid within a few weeks of the crash to apply on that indebtedness. The last payment—more than $31,000—was made the day before the exposure of the company's condition.

Judge Landwehr Disqualifies Self for Felony Trial of Bender.

A Judge to be selected by Circuit Judge Landwehr, who yesterday disqualified himself in the case, will preside at the trial of A. Samuel Bender on the charge of compounding a felony in the Rutherford murder case settlement.

This was decided by Judge Landwehr following application of Bender yesterday afternoon for an immediate trial on the indictment. When Bender's petition was presented to Judge Landwehr by Harry Blodgett, his counsel, Attorney-General Gentry objected on the ground that Judge Landwehr had appeared as a witness before the grand jury which indicted Bender. The Judge concurred in Gentry's objection and disqualified himself, announcing that early next week he would select a Judge to sit in the case. This Judge will then decide whether Bender is to have a speedy trial, and will set the case.

Bender is to go on trial Monday before Provisional Judge Grodzki in the Court of Criminal Correction on the charge of conspiracy to pervert and obstruct justice, a misdemeanor.

There is considerable speculation as to whether Landwehr will select a St. Louis Judge to sit in the felony case or call in one from out of town. All the Circuit Judges in St. Louis except Judge Franklin Miller have appeared before the grand jury in the Rutherford case, and they would probably be disqualified. Judge Miller is eligible and is known to be entirely satisfactory to the Attorney-General.

POLITICIANS HOPE FOR A CHANGE IN PRIMARY SYSTEM

Pennsylvania Disclosures No Surprise — Fights for Nomination Always Have Been Costly.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1926.)

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The public may be shocked to learn that $2,000,000 has been spent in the Republican primaries in Pennsylvania for the nomination for United States Senator and Governor, but the politicians here are not surprised. The only surprise to them is the candor and frankness of the witnesses.

And it would not be at all displeasing to most of the political folks here if one of the results of the Reed investigation was to bring about a complete change of mind on the part of many people toward the primary election system.

Final elections themselves are expensive anyway, but the added cost of a primary campaign is something under which aspirants to public office have found hard going for the last 10 years.

It is no exaggeration to say, as compared with the money spent in Pennsylvania to name a State ticket coincident with a senatorial fight, there has been proportionately large expenditures in many states of the Union.

Easy to Dodge Publicity Laws.

The State laws requiring publication of campaign expenditures are easily circumvented. Were it not for the fact that the witnesses from Pennsylvania frankly told about the State campaign, the Senate investigating committee would have no right to interrogate them about strictly State matters. The Supreme Court has held that the Senate cannot pass laws regulating campaign expenditures in primary elections even if a United States Senator is running for office. This has effectually blocked all previous attempts at investigation of campaign expenses.

It is well known among politicians that the dual system of government in America permits many abuses in the financing of political campaigns. The favorite device, especially in presidential campaigns, is to encourage the State organization to raise large amounts of money, ostensibly for the election of State tickets, but it is difficult to draw the line between the work done for a candidate for State office and a candidate for national office. In this way a presidential candidate may actually have had spent in his behalf, in the entire nation, not more than three or four million dollars, while in the several states there may be as high as fifteen to twenty million dollars expended which aided the national ticket.

Reversed in Pennsylvania.

Just the reverse process was in effect in Pennsylvania. The real battle, as revealed by the witnesses, was for the control of the State Government at Harrisburg. Joseph R. Grundy, president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, who underwrote nearly $500,000 of the money spent on behalf of John Fisher for Governor, and George W. Pepper for Senator, has frankly admitted that he was not much interested in Pepper but wanted to make sure that a Governor was elected whose attitude on the taxation of corporations would not be disadvantageous.

Conversely, a great many voters supported Representative Vare's candidacy for the senatorial nomination because they believed he might develop into a Penrose who could control both Harrisburg and Washington so far as Pennsylvania interests were concerned.

Until the several states make laws forbidding the payment of watchers at the polls, and otherwise repressing extravagance in campaign expenditures, the experience in Pennsylvania this year will continue to be encountered in other states. The totals may be lower, but the proportion will be much the same.

Unofficial Expenditures.

Unofficial campaign committees can be organized by friends of the candidates and usually no accounting insisted on. The amount spent by the candidate himself, and the committee over which he has jurisdiction, can be only a drop in the bucket compared with the actual money spent in the campaign.

The Senate may, if it chooses, refuse a seat to anyone who spends a large sum of money in either a primary or a final election, but usually this is attempted only when there is evidence of fraud.

Is the selection of the watchers at the polls at $10 a day a fraud, especially if 40,000 or 50,000 watchers are employed? Until now the employment of watchers has not been frowned on and has been considered legitimate.

The primary system has brought in many other forms of expenditure. Should therefore the primary system be abolished?

Pennsylvania is in a sense like the Southern states. The primary is the real election for a Republican nomination is equivalent to election in Pennsylvania just as a Democratic nomination in the South is usually ratified in the autumn election.

Rolls of Money Handed To Primary Workers

the ward leaders who were getting the larger amounts."

The witness told next of the Vare pay-off. This took place in an old theater building, running through a block. He heard a clamor there and went to see what was happening.

Clamoring for Money.

"It was people clamoring for their money," he continued. "The crowd there was larger than the crowd I later saw at the Pepper headquarters, but that was probably due to the fact that the Vare people were paying more slowly.

"They were paying off through a door in the building. The line was six wide and they were fighting for places. Four or five husky workers were trying to hold them in line. The line extended 150 to 200 feet."

"It was like a run on a bank," suggested Reed. "Yes, it must have been something like that," replied Beutel. "The work went on actively on Wednesday and Thursday. On Wednesday at 5 p. m., while they were opening the money bags, a tear bomb exploded."

He explained that it was a common practice of the Pittsburg banks to put tear bombs in bags of money, the idea being that an unauthorized person opening a bag would probably do it the wrong way and get a shot of gas.

"This bomb exploded," he went on, "and the crowd was driven out into the street and the payment delayed for an hour.

"They paid there most of Thursday. Then the activity was transferred to an alderman's office, where they paid for the rest of that week. It has been testified here that they paid next week, too, but I don't know about that.

"At the Vare headquarters all the workers were paid on certificates, green or white. A few of them got $5, but the majority received much more. I saw rolls of $40, $50 and $60. A man would get his money and peel off the bills at the window, so that it was easy for an observer to count them."

"Was there any disturbance?" asked Reed. "Early in the morning after the primary," said the witness. "There was a disturbance because the money was not there immediately, but after that things went along smoothly."

Brookhart at Hearing.

At this stage of the hearing former Senator Brookhart, fresh from his victory in Iowa, entered the room and was greeted cordially by the three committee members present—Reed, King and La Follettt.

"When are we going to investigate your campaign?" asked Reed, smilingly.

"It won't take you long to investigate mine," replied Brookhart.

Reed invited Brookhart to sit down at the committee table, but the Iowan said he had an engagement.

Questioned by the committee, Beutel testified to an astonishing condition of political rottenness in Pittsburg.

"Anybody in a two-sided campaign who spends enough money can swing an election," he said. "Workers came to us and offered their services but when they found we were short of money they lost interest. There are plenty of 'watchers' who will work for anybody who will pay them."

Beutel said that certain wards in Pittsburg had definite market quotations.

"You mean to say," said Reed, "that if you get the ward leaders you can carry them?" "Usually," he replied.

"That is to say," went on Reed, "that there are leaders who are out for the coin and the man who pays them gets the ward?" "Yes," replied Beutel, "there are large numbers of such men. It has already been shown in this hearing that there were enough people on the Vare and Pepper payrolls to swing the election in Pittsburg."

He went on to say that the estimate of Charles C. McGovern, a Pinchot supporter, that Vare and Pepper had 50,000 watchers in Allegheny County was fairly accurate.

20,000 Got Money.

"Certainly," he said. "About 20,000 got money from the Vare and Pepper headquarters during the pay-off. At the Vare headquarters I noticed that many in the line had handfuls of watchers' certificates, so it would appear they were collecting for others as well as themselves. I assume that some of the men who got large sums at the Pepper headquarters likewise represented outsiders. The Pepper people themselves have admitted that they had 17,000 on the pay roll."

"You have that evil brood in large numbers in Pittsburg?" asked Reed.

"Yes," he replied. "And around the polling places men come and go very easily. The workers go right into the polling places. They actually bring people to the polls and vote them."

Reed asked whether votes were bought outright. The witness replied it was not the custom to go up to a man and say, "Here is $10 for your vote." The custom was to employ the man as a "watcher" or a "messenger."

"If the watcher does not vote for the man who hires him," continued Beutel, "he is known as a cheater."

"So you do have a code of morals," commented Reed. "If a man is bought, he is expected to stay bought."

Beutel said that the Vare and Pepper people hired as watchers anybody who would take the job. It was impossible, he said, to keep Pinchot literature displayed outside the polling places. As fast as his posters were put up, "watchers" for the other factions tore them down.

Ballots Thrown Into Sewer.

To illustrate the practical nature of politics in Pittsburg, Beutel told of a recent contest over a minor office. The defeated candidate got out a petition and had the ballot boxes opened. They were found to be empty.

"It was testified," said Beutel, "that immediately after the election the ballots were taken out of the boxes and thrown into the sewer."

Beutel questioned the estimate of a Pepper manager that only $5000 had been paid out for advertising by the Pepper-Fisher forces in Allegheny County. He said that they ran five full pages in one paper alone, the cost of which would exceed $5000. Since they used similar space in the other papers, he was sure the total outlay was far greater.

Pepper's Finance Committee.

With close to $1,500,000 already uncovered as the admitted expenditure in the Republican primary in Pennsylvania, the committee dug further into the huge slush fund raised for Senator Pepper.

Robert Glendinning, a Philadelphia investment banker, who was chairman of the Pepper finance committee, testified that he placed on the committee everybody that he thought was "good for $1000." He got 30 or 40 such subscriptions, and the givers went down automatically on his committee list.

Reed asked him to name some of them. The witness mentioned Edward W. Bok, who contributed $2000. He added that Bok's name was later eliminated from the committee list at his own request.

Reed pricked up his ears at the name of Bok, whom he has frequently criticised for "propagandist" activities. He did not, however, pursue the subject of Bok's interest in Pepper.

Asked to name some of the $1000 men on his committee, Glendinning read a list that bristled with the names of wealthy Philadelphia bankers and manufacturers.

T. Henry Walnut, Pinchot chairman for the City of Philadelphia, testified that he had been chairman of the State Workmen's Compensation Board, a gubernatorial appointment with an annual salary of $9000. He said he had drawn no salary from the State for the period he was occupied with the campaign.

"Do you belong to any temperance society?" asked Reed. "I do not."

Walnut said his committee confined its activities to 10 or 20 wards in Philadelphia. He got "most all of the money" from the Pinchot State organization, only $147 coming from the outside in voluntary donations.

Pinchot "Watchers" Paid.

The Philadelphia committee came through with a balance of about $4000, because some ward leaders turned back money given them to "pay" "watchers' certificates." Some 400 "watchers" were paid by the committee, the witness said, while others were paid by the ward leaders. The maximum number of Pinchot "watchers" in Philadelphia, he estimated, would not exceed 700.

He said that on election day he noticed a great number of Vare "watchers" at the polls, but comparatively few Pepper "watchers."

"Were you anywhere near the Vare headquarters on pay day?" asked Reed. "Nobody was able to penetrate the secrecy of that function," Walnut replied.

He explained that payments were made to the ward leaders who secretly gave the money to the "watchers."

Switching of Ballots.

Asked about the general character of Philadelphia politics, the witness said there was a switching of ballots in four ballot boxes "in the fight we had last fall." The men responsible were arrested.

"What happened to them?" Reed asked. "They were acquitted."

Beutel, who was chairman of the Speakers' Committee at Pinchot's Pittsburg headquarters, was preceded on the stand by another, put into the record a statement showing receipts of $28,297, with expenditures of $24,171 by the Pinchot Committee in Philadelphia. Some of the more important expenditures listed were $7240 for "watchers," $3680 for "salaries," $352 for printing and $1000 for meetings.

Pinchot Chairman Testifies.

C. Jay Goodnough of Emporium, Pa., chairman of the Pinchot State Committee, told th ecommittee that the total spent by that committee was $156,000. Abou $52,000 went to county organizations, an average of $800 a county.

"They raised some money in the counties?" Reed asked.

"To a limited extent," was the reply. "Outside of $10,000 given by Mr. Pinchot to the county organization, I venture to say that not more than $9000 was raised in the counties."

Goodnough said the total spent for Pinchot was $175,000.

Charles C. McGovern, Western manager for Pinchot, was quoted by the witness as saying that Mayor Charles Kline told city employes if they did not vote for the Pepper-Fisher ticket they would be dismissed the day after the primary.

"Put Mayor Cline's name on the list to be subpenaed," directed Chairman Reed.

One reason why the business of the Security National Bank, 8th Street between Olive and Locust, is growing steadily is because the Bank is open EVERY DAY in all departments until 5 P. M.

"Save With Security"

SAYS BREWERY GUARDS ARE HOLDING 'PARTIES'

New Athens, Ill., Man Also Charges They Beat Him—Trouble Feared.

Eight prohibition officers have been dispatched to the brewery at New Athens, Ill., 25 miles southeast of St. Louis, to reinforce two officers who have been guarding 20,000 gallons of beer discovered in a raid on the brewery last week.

Resentment of the townspeople to the raid caused Deputy Prohibition Director Barker of East St. Louis to fear that trouble might arise and, for a time last night, it appeared that his fears were justified.

John Ziegler, a resident of New Athens, complained last night that three or four of the agents on guard at the brewery had attacked and beaten him. Ziegler and other citizens have been charging that since the agents took charge of the brewery they have been holding "parties" attended by men and women who have driven in and out of the town in automobiles. On one occasion, Ziegler declared, he saw a vacuum jug being carried into the brewery and later carried away in a sack.

Ziegler asserted he was in the back yard of his residence, which adjoins the brewery, last night when the prohibition agents beat him.

Later Mayor Feuer of New Athens telephoned Sheriff Schnipper at Belleville that a crowd was gathering at the brewery and that it looked as if trouble would ensue. When the Sheriff, with three deputies, arrived at the brewery at midnight only a few loiterers were there.

The prohibition agents declared to the Sheriff that Ziegler had knocked at the door of the brewery and when he had not made clear what he wanted they had "shoved" him out. They denied having beaten him.

MELLON'S NEPHEW HEADS COMMITTEE

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—William L. Mellon of Pittsburg, nephew of the Secretary of the Treasury, was elected chairman of the Republican State Committee today in succession to W. Harry Baker of Harrisburg. Baker was elected secretary, a position he held for years before he was elevated to the chairmanship, four years ago.

A last-minute agreement to avoid a fight and so go into the fall campaign with a united front, resulted in the election of Mellon to the chairmanship.

Senator Pepper, defeated candidate for senatorial renomination, appealed for a united party in the fall campaign so as to maintain Republican supremacy in the State and in both houses of Congress.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, in a brief address, attacked the statewide primary system, referring to it as a "beautiful, rosy reform adopted 20 years ago."

"The whole country appears to be startled and our friends, the Democrats, appear to be shocked at the amount of money necessarily spent in the recent campaign.

"It is forgotten that it was a great and important campaign," said Senator Reed. "This is not a petty Western state. It is a nation in itself of 9,000,000 people."

Enumerating the large number of candidates in the fight for the various State, legislative and congressional offices, Reed said the money was spent in all propriety because of the "silly mechanism thrust upon us 20 years ago."

LOSES SUIT FOR PART OF WAINWRIGHT F

Attorney Wanted Fedrick $50,000 Paid to Local Lawyers in Will Case

David Weinstein, New York lawyer, said by Samuel Chess, another New York attorney, to have "remied his way" into the estate of Rosalind Velva Kendall Wainwright to break the will of her father, Ellis Wainwright, in his suit for a quarter portion of $50,000 fee paid to the local firm of Laughlin, Frumberg, Blodgett & Russell, when a jury in Federal Judge Faris' court yesterday decided he had not acted in good faith.

Judge Faris instructed the jury that the question of Weinstein's good faith was the only one in the case and directed that if they found he had not acted in good faith then the local firm was entitled to a judgment on a counter-claim for $960, the unexpended part of the $1000 advanced to Weinstein for expenses. The jury returned a judgment in favor of the local firm for the amount stated by the Court.

"To descend to the vernacular," Judge Faris told the jury, "if you find the plaintiff 'double-crossed' the defendants then your verdict must be for the defendants."

The jury had heard testimony by the various lawyers in the case. Chess testified that on Dec. 7, 1924, he went with Rosalind Wainwright to see Lillian Morello, trained nurse who had attended Ellis Wainwright during his illness in 1922, and had obtained a statement from her that her patient at that time was of unsound mind. The attending physician was Dr. Will Reiser.

Later, on Dec. 24, the local firm of lawyers interested in the litigation received a letter from Weinstein in which the latter stated he was counsel for Miss Morello and was writing to advise them that a New York attorney and Miss Wainwright had called on her and obtained a false statement, representing to her they had shown a statement to Dr. Reiser and that he advised that the nurse sign.

Weinstein is a brother-in-law of Dr. Reiser. The local firm investigated conditions and then offered Weinstein a contract for a quarter of their fee, which was 25 per cent contingent basis, to get the testimony of Miss Morello and Dr. Reiser.

Randolph Laughlin testified that after the contract was made he went to New York to see and interview Miss Morello and that instead of aiding him to this Weinstein prevented him from seeing the nurse. Weinstein will appeal.

TWO MEN CHARGED WITH MURDER IN HOME BREW FLAT

Coroner's Jury Names Raymond Fischel and Albert J. Ruhlman in the C. A. McCormick Killing.

ONE OF SUSPECTS IS UNDER ARREST

Declines to Testify at Inquest and Wife Cries "He Didn't Do It," When Verdict Is Read.

A Coroner's verdict of homicide was returned against two men today at the conclusion of the inquest in the death of Constant Edgar McCormick, 28 years old, known as Edward T. Taylor, who was shot to death early Tuesday in his all-night home brew flat at 3330A Olive street.

The men ordered held without bond are Raymond Fischel, 25 years old, a pipefitter, of 3662A Laclede avenue, and Albert J. Ruhlman, alias Ollie Weber, address unknown. Fischel is under arrest, and Ruhlman is being sought. Fischel was present but declined to testify at the inquest. When the verdict was returned, his wife burst into tears and cried: "He didn't do it—he didn't do it."

At the beginnnig of the inquest Wednesday, McCormick's widow testified that she heard Weber make threats against her husband in another home brew place at 3921 Olive street an hour before the murder. She quoted Weber as saying: "He (McCormick) did me a dirty trick and I'm going to get me a couple of rods and blow up his dump."

Today Fischel's 20-year-old wife, Amy, testified that she, Fischel, Mrs. McCormick, a man known to her as "Ollie" and several other persons, including chorus girls from the Liberty Music Hall, attended a home brew party at 3921 Olive Monday night. She recalled no threats made then, but said everybody was "feeling happy." At 1:30 a. m., she testified, her husband suggested they go home, but she demurred, and he said, "I'll have Ollie take me home."

Fischel and Ollie then departed. Half an hour later Mrs. Fischel and Mrs. McCormick left and walked to Grand and Olive, where they heard of the shooting of McCormick. That day, Tuesday, Fischel and his wife drove to her former home at Zeigler, Ill., and he was arrested on his return.

KRISHNAMURTI ACCEPTED AS NEW "WORLD TEACHER"

Theosophical Society Supports Mrs. Besant's Claims Regarding Young Indian.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 12.—Mrs. Annie Besant, president of the Theosophical Society, won a victory today when the organization, in convention at Queens Hall, voted 600 to 3, to accept the young Indian Krishnamurti, whom Mrs. Bestant has been heralding as a new "world teacher."

Krishnamurti and Mrs. Besant recently arrived in London after a short stay on the continent. In some quarters the young Indian has been hailed as the "New Messiah," but Mrs. Besant has reiterated her statement made at Madras last January that she never applied the term "Messiah" to him.

Krishnamurti, Mrs. Besant told a correspondent for the Associated Press in London, is the instrument through which a great "world teacher" would reveal a new civilization. She told of revelations which Krishnamurti has reported to his followers and of his speaking with a differtnt voice as though serving as the mouthpiece of some unseen power.

MRS. ELSIE HINMAN DULA AND CHARLES B. HINMAN.
SHE is suing her mother-in-law, Mrs. Josephine Dula, for $250,000 for the loss of her husband, Robert L. Dula. The defendant is the widow of Robert B. Dula, former director of the American Tobacco Co., once a resident of St. Louis.

SUITOR, RING AND $150 LOST BY TELEPHONE GIRL

She Causes Arrest of Barber When He Fails to Divorce Wife or Return Savings.

Miss Bettie Siems, 18 years old, of 3448A Magnolia avenue, a telephone operator, has reported the loss of a prospective husband, a diamond ring and $150 in savings.

Her complaint resulted in the arrest of Florence Heaman, 28 years old, a married man and a barber, of 3823A Potomac street. He is at liberty on bond pending decision by the Circuit Attorney on an application for a warrant against him.

"I used to room at the Heaman home at 4022 Shenandoah avenue until Heaman and his wife separated, and I moved to my present address," Miss Siems told Capt. Agee of the Magnolia Avenue Station. "Then Heaman began courting me and said he intended to divorce his wife and marry me. He noticed I was wearing a dinner ring, set with 15 diamonds, which was a gift, and I turned it over to him for safekeeping because he said it was dangerous for me to wear it. At his request, I also turned over to him $150 in savings, drawing $105 of it from a bank. But he made no move toward getting a divorce, so I demanded the return of my ring and money. He still has them."

Police took Heaman from behind his chair in a barber shop at 205 North Seventh street. He said he had misplaced the ring, but would buy another one for Miss Siems. The money, he said, had been borrowed and would be repaid.

AMERICAN REPORTED SLAIN IN MEXICO KILLED HIMSELF

Richard Dawson Was Destitute and Despondent, U. S. Consular Agent Says.

By the Associated Press.

NOGALES, Ariz., June 12.—Richard Dawson, American, reported to have been murdered at Los Mochis, Sinaloa, Mexico, committed suicide, H. F. Jones, United States consular agent at Los Mochis, told the Nogales Herald upon his arrival here. Jones, who is vice president of the American Sugar Co., said Dawson, destitute and despondent, ended his life with a pistol shot on the outskirts of the city.

"Young Dawson," said Jones, "arrived at Los Mochis 10 days ago looking for work. As we were closing our factory, our secretary advised him to leave. Saturday, Dawson was missing from his hotel, and Monday morning his body was found on the banks of an old canal on the outskirts of the city.

"There was a bullet wound blackened by powder in his temple. He was rushed to the United Sugar Co. company hospital, where he died.

"In Dawson's pockets were four several cartridges of the same caliber as the bullet fired in his head. This led us to believe he had taken his own life."

'ONCE LOVE IS DEAD, IT'S DEAD,' SAYS DULA

Declares His Wife "Caroused All Over Montmartre District of Paris."

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 12.—"Once love is dead it is dead." This, Robert L. Dula testified yesterday, was his answer to requests of his estranged wife that he return and live with her.

The trial of the suit of Mrs. Elsie Hinman Dula against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Josephine Dula, for $250,000 for alienation of her husband's affections, continued yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Crain. The defendant is the widow of Robert B. Dula, a former vice president of the American Tobacco Co., and once a resident of St. Louis.

Dula declared his wife drank heavily on their trip through Europe in 1922 and "caroused all over the Montmartre district in Paris." He denied that he had done any drinking on the trip until he and his wife had a spat in a Paris hotel and he took separate quarters. After that, he said, he began drinking heavily.

Signed Paper, but Was Drunk.

On his return to the United States he went to a sanitarium to recover from the effects of his indulgence, and then his friend and former business partner, Peter Cameron of White Plains, took him to another sanitarium in Stamford, Conn., where he stayed about six weeks. Cameron did not tell him he was going to take him to the sanitarium, he said, but gave him about 12 drinks.

At the sanitarium he signed a paper, but was so drunk he did not know what he was signing.

In the summer of 1921, Dula said, he and his wife had a quarrel, because another woman "made violent love to him" as they were driving from the Sleepy Hollow Country Club. After their estrangement, he visited his wife at her apartment in Eightieth street several times at her request and lunched there with her and her brother.

"Did you stay over night?" he was asked. "I did not," he replied.

Charges Not Made Before.

"You never made any of these charges of derelictions against your wife during the previous litigation, did you? Were you saving your ammunition for this trial?"

"I was advised by counsel not to tell these things at that time," Dula answered.

BROTHERS DIE IN OZARK FEUD

Their Father Also Wounded by Assailant, Who Gives Up.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 12.—Two persons were killed and another was perhaps fatally wounded last night in a feud near Hartville, in Wright County, according to a message received by the Springfield Republican.

The two men killed were "Doc" Neal and Howard Neal, brothers. Their father, who also engaged in the fight, was critically wounded, attending physicians holding out no hope for his recovery. The men were killed by William Fletcher, about 35 years old, of Astoria, who surrendered to N. J. Craig, prosecuting attorney of Wright County. Fletcher was taken to jail in Hartville.

ROBBERS GET $750 AND LEAVE VICTIMS LYING ON FLOOR

Office of City Cairies Company Held Up by Three Armed Men Who Escape in Auto.

SOUGHT COLLECTIONS OF WAGON DRIVERS

Only Four Collectors, However, Had Reported — Auditor Is Forced to Open Company Safe.

Four robbers drove up to the City Dairies Co., 4218 Laclede avenut, at 4:30 p. m., yesterday, and drove away a few minutes later with loot of approximately $750 after holding up nine employes.

While one robber remained at the wheel of an automobile, three armed companions entered by the front door, two of them adjusting handkerchiefs to mask their faces. Inside they encountered two bookkeepers, Miss Blanche Pohlman and Miss Christine Cavanaugh, and four wagon drivers and marched them a short distance to the cashier's office, where Joseph Machacek, auditor and cashier; Oscar Stout, collection manager, and Miss Winifred Voirol, a bookkeeper, were working.

All but Machacek were forced to stand against a wall, and he was compelled to open a safe. From the safe and an adjacent desk between $700 and $750 was taken. The robbers evidently had expected more, so they searched Elmer Sobrist, one of the drivers, and took $30 from him.

As a precaution against pursuit, the robbers ordered the nine employes to get down on the floor and stay there. The order was obeyed slowly, due to lack of space, and the robbers resorted to profanity. They departed with an announcement that they would kill anyone who pursued or identified them. The robbers were described as slender young men, 20 to 25 years old.

It is customary for wagon drivers to turn in their collections between 4 and 4:30 p. m., and the robbers evidently had anticipated this. Only four of the 17 drivers had reported at the time of the holdup.

Machacek and another employe were held up and robbed of $2400 by an armed highwayman at the old dairy plant, Jefferson avenue and Washington boulevard, on Sept. 22, 1924.

Wellston Grocer Captures One of Two Holdup Men.

Benjamin Dachroeden, a grocer at 1512 Oak Grove avenue, Wellston, saw two men gazing at his store from across the street this morning, and, thinking he recognized one as a man who had attempted to rob him two weeks ago, put his money and his revolver in his pocket.

When the men entered the store a few minutes later, Dachroeden pointed the revolver at him. One ran, but Dachroeden forced the other to hold up his hands, and was able to detain him until a Deputy Sheriff arrived. He was taken to Clayton, where a warrant charging attempted robbery will be applied for.

Movie Theater Manager's "Hunch" Saves Money From Robbers.

It is the practice of Arthur Kalbfell, manager of the Pauline movie theater, Claxton and Lillian avenues, to take the night's receipts home with him, but last night he had a hunch and let his father take the money.

The younger Kalbfell was walking to his home at 4549 Mary avenue at 10:15 p. m., when four men, their faces covered with red bandanas, got out of a red automobile on Claxton avenue between West Florissant and Harney avenues and held him up. They demanded "the dough," took the few nickels he had and cursed him for not having more, then drove away. The license plates on their car had been stolen earlier in the night from the car of Joseph Dempsey, 5647 Spalding avenue, and police believe the car also was stolen.

By the Associated Press.

Hoffman active for years in Cook County politics, technically surrendered by telephone today and was told he might go to jail unaccompanied if he desired. He was convicted, with his warden, Wesley Westbrook, of permitting too many liberties to two beer runners serving Federal terms in the Cook County Jail.

Hoffman was sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $2500, while Westbrook was sentenced to four months in jail, but not fined. Westbrook plans to start his sentence in the Sycamore County Jail tomorrow or Monday.

$500,000 RUSSIAN ART COLLECTION BEING SOUGHT

Rare Jewels Included in List of Articles That Disappeared in San Francisco.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—The Russian department of the Bank of Italy today began a search for a collection of paintings, bronzes and precious stones valued at $500,000 supposed to have been stored in a bank vault three years ago. The collection was assembled in the Far East by the late Ivan Leonidovick Kalmykoff, court artist to the Czar of Russia.

The search was instigated at the request of Mrs. Kattiska L. Meyer of Shanghai, sister of Kalmykoff, one of numerous claimants to the property. The bank is unable to find any record of when the collection was stored, although Kalmykoff exhibited it here three years ago.

Kalmykoff died here in 1925 and is supposed to have left a will providing for the return of the collection to Russia when the United States recognized that Government.

TWO TAKEN IN RAID ON RACE TIP SERVICE OFFICE

Police Had Been Searching Six Weeks for Headquarters of Bowers Publication.

Sergeant Mulcahy and the gambling squad, ending a six weeks' search for the offices of the "Bowers Jockey Scratches," a one-sheet publication sold on the street for 25 cents a copy, yesterday raided offices at 610 Pine street, second floor rear, and booked two men "suspected of gambling." A girl answering telephones was not arrested. A man describing himself as William Krell of 1421 Semple avenue, said no bets were taken at the office, but information on race results was given as service to buyers of the paper. The sheet lists horses, jockeys, weights and probable odds for races throughout the country. The other man arrested said he was Henry Harris of the Majestic Hotel.

NO REASON FOR CONFERENCE ABOUT MOROCCO, BRIAND SAYS

Declares France and Spain had to Unite to Protect Their Work in Africa.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 12.—France and Spain finally realized they had to be allies in order to safeguard their work in Morocco from outside peril, Premier Briand told the Chamber of Deputies yesterday in the course of a stormy session which was frequently thrown into turmoil by the interruptions of the young communist, Deputy Doriot.

Referring to reports that Italy had demanded the convocation of an international conference on Morocco, the Premier declared: "France and Spain finally obtained peace, and there is nothing in that collaboration which might justify the calling of an international conference."

Andre Berthon, communist Deputy, asked about the recent voyage to Tripoli of the Italian Premier, Mussolini. This evoked a tart reply by Briand. "Don't bother about the internal affairs of other countries," Briand said. "Don't speak disobligingly of foreign statesmen. You have enough to do with the Ministers in your own country."

WOMAN BOOKKEEPER FREED IN FRAUD CASE

Jury Acquits Dorothy F. C. Hernandez in Trial on False Pretense Charge.

Dorothy F. C. Hernandez, mannish bookkeeper of the Smith-Reis Piano Co., 1005 Olive street, was acquitted of a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses, by a jury in Circuit Judge Frey's Court late yesterday.

Testifying in her own defense, Miss Hernandez admitted collecting a $175 commission when she turned in a spurious order for a $3500 piano, but she said the transaction was suggested and approved by Stanwood Miller, president of the company, who wanted her to win a sales contest and a trip by airplane to Chicago.

She testified further that Miller's interest in her extended to taking her to the Missouri Theater and visiting her one Sunday at a Meramec River clubhouse where she was staying. The Saturday preceding her arrest he led her to a third-floor stockroom ostensibly to show her how pianos are sold, and attempted familarities, she asserted.

At the conclusion of her testimony, Miller was recalled to the witness stand and made a denial of her charges. He insisted he thought her "sale" of the $3500 piano was legitimate until he discovered the piano had not been ordered and Miss Hernandez had not deposited a check which she represented to have received in payment. It was this transaction that resulted in her arrest in the spring of 1925. She jumped her bond here, but was rearrested in Detroit in male attire and brought back.

Miss Hernandez testified that she was 29 years old. She wore a man's white shirt and a black four-in-hand tie, with blue skirt suspended by shoulder straps. Her black hair was bobbed boyishly.

HEAVY TRACK IS LIKELY TO HURT CHANCES OF CAPT. HAL TODAY

SEVEN TO START IN $5000 STAKE AT FAIRMOUNT

David L. an 8 to 1 Shot, Captures First Event on Program — About 8000 Persons Attend.

By Dent McSkimming.
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

FAIRMOUNT RACE TRACK, June 12.—M. Lowenstein's David L., an outsider, surprised the "form" students and set the fashion for long prices by beating the favorites in the opening event of this afternoon's program, a one-mile race.

Fire Under, the cohice of the bettors, was second, and Bulletin, another favorite, third.

The winner paid 8 to 1.

Teh start was faultless and five contenders were well bunched going aorund the first turn, in front of the club house. They strung out in the long run down the back stretch, with Bulletin in front, David L. second and the others trailing. David L. and Fire Under showed teh most speed in the stretch, while Bulletin tired.

Sun Helps Track.

The track was drying out fast, but it was still considered slow as a result of the morniing rain. The hot sun gave promise of drying up all moisture before the running of the fifth race and in that case the track would be fast.

Heavy, overhangiing clouds made the day sultry and the temperature was close to 90. The crowd arrived early, and when the horses went to the post for the first race there were about 8000 persons present.

The big event on the program was the Hotel Statler Handicap for a purse of $5000 added, in which King Nadi was favored to win from Captain Hal, Cudgeller and others.

137-Pound Impost for Captain Hal.

The probability of a heavy track will serve to increase the chances of the lesser lights entered in the day's feature. The 137-pound impost on Captain Hal is likely to feel like a long ton of hard coal if the track is muddy, whereas on dry, fast going the Captain might shoulder his weight as lightly as he would the usual package.

Princess Pan, with only 95 pounds up, will have more than a handful of supporters, while King Nadi, who was generally regarded the equal of the Captain under ordinary conditions, will be further favored by the heavy track, for he has an advantage of seven pounds over Captain Hal.

Beau Butler was scratched from the field this morning, reducing the number of starters to seven. Beau Butler will be among the competitors in the sixth race.

P. P.	Horse.	Jockey.	Wt.
1	Hourmore	F. J. Baker	109
2	Dr. Clark	G. Huntamer	104
3	Cudgeller		105
4	Captain Hal	E. Pool	137
5	Princess Pan	R. Jones	95
6	King Nadi	R. Williams	130
7	Gliding Fox	L. Geving	105

Carlaris to Parade.

An additional feature on today's program will be the appearance of the so-called "wonder colt," Carlaris. Trainer Fred Kraft will parade Carlaris through the stretch during the interval between the third and fourth races. Many are curious to discover whether this fast stepper is built along the lines of an ordinary racehorse. His record of having twice lowered the track record at Tijuana, running away from such a formidable competitor as Princess Doreen, aroused widespread interest. The colt is in active training now, after a long lay-off due to an injury.

There will be a five and one-half furlong event for 2-year-olds, the second number on the card.

Helen Wills Is Out of Hospital

Rapid Recovery From Operation Permits Removal to Hotel.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 12.—Miss Helen Wills, American lawn tennis champion, who submitted to an operation for appendicitis last week, was taken from the Neuilly Hospital last night to the hotel where her mother is stopping.

After staying a few days more in Paris she plans to go to England to watch the Wimbledon tournament. The champion today said she was slightly tired, but that her condition was perfectly satisfactory. She is certain she will be able to play in the Forest Hills championships.

When she learned she was to be taken from the hospital to the hotel, a distance of about two miles, Miss Wills was delighted.

"If it would only rain steadily for four days more," she said, "I might be present at the Lenglen-Browne finals."

This was a reference to the meeting between Miss Mary K. Browne of California and Suzanne Lenglen in the singles of the international hard court championship tournament. The match was rained off yesterday and conditions were again threatening this morning.

RUTH AND DUGAN TO BE ARRESTED WHEN THEY RETURN TO DETROIT

DETROIT, Mich., June 12.—Babe Ruth, champion home-run hitter, and Joe Dugan, third baseman for the New York Yankees, will be arrested the minute they step inside of Wayne County, on warrants charging fishing out of season, Justice Caleb Collett of Brighton, who issued the warrants, said today.

The complaints were filed by the caretaker of Island Lake State Park, a Deputy State Game Warden, who arrested Ruth and Dugan on charges of fishing out of season while the ballplayers were spending the night in a cottage on the island.

Ruth and Dugan failed to appear before Justice Collett as they had been ordered to do at the conclusion of the game yesterday between the Tigers and Yankees.

Rain Reduces Chances of New Track Records

Southern California U. Athletes Favored in National Meet.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Unfavorable track conditions minimized likelihood of many outstanding performances as collegiate athletes faced the barrier today in the finals of the National Intercollegiate Athletic Association games.

Interest centered on Roland Locke, Nebraska comet, and his effort to establish world records in the sprints. His outstanding challenger was Fred Alderman of Michigan State, who set a new record of 21.7 for the 220-yard event in yesterday's preliminaries after Locke had traveled the distance under wraps in 21.8 to the meet record held by Paulu of Grinnell.

Locke was clocked in 9.8 seconds for the 100-yard dash at the Drake Relays on a track resembling that of today's games. Rain soaked the cinders and made running difficult, and the field was so saturated that preliminary field events were abandoned. Running against a stiff wind, Locke traveled 100 yards yesterday in 10.3 to qualify easily, winning his heat, as he did in the 220, by stepping ahead of Sharkey of Miami at the finish.

The University of Southern California entered today's events a favorite for honors, with six qualifiers in the running events and a field brigade led by Houser, weight ace. Illinois and Michigan each qualified four runners.

Guthrie of Ohio State led the high hurdles at 15.2 seconds, and Spence of Detroit City College headed the low barrier field in the preliminaries with a 24.4 second performance.

Oetreich of Gustavus Adolphus, St. Paul, furnished a surprise with his victory in his 440-yard-dash heat in 50.6 seconds, which was equalled by Rooney of Kansas in his heat of the same event.

Charteris of Washington, winner of the 880-yard dash last year, led the qualifiers in his event today at 1:58.8.

Fifteen track and field events are on today's program.

GOOD PITCHING BIG FACTOR IN ST. LOUIS DRIVE

Hornsby's Men Close on Heels of Second Place Pirates After Three Triumphs in a Row in New York.

Cards' Game Off

NEW YORK, June 12.
IT was announced at noon today that the fourth game of the Giants-Cardinals series had been called off on account of rain.

Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, June 12.—With six straight victories to their credit and close on the heels of the world's champion Pirates for second place, Rogers Hornsby and his touting Cardinals were idle today, due to rain. Their next effort will be at Brooklyn, Monday.
The Cardinals have shown the Giants plenty of real big league baseball since they came to town and yesterday was no exception. After the easy 10 to 2 victory that the St. Louis crowd scored over McGraw's troupe yesterday, an old giant fan remarked:
"That's the smoothest working ball club that has visited the Polo Grounds this season."

Cards Show Their Power.

There is no getting away from the fact that the Cardinals have far outplayed the Giants in the first three games of the series. They played another great fielding game yesterday and hit when hits meant runs. They slammed "Chick" Davies, the little southpaw, for four runs in the eighth inning and another more in the ninth.
But what has pleased Hornsby most is the pitching. Bill Sherdel held the Giants to seven hits Wednesday; Flint Rhem allowed only five on Thursday and Vic Keen, the former Cub, yielded nine yesterday, but he kept them well scattered. One of the runs that the Giants scored came in the ninth inning when the Cardinals had the game won.
It is reported here today that McGraw is trying desperately to put through a deal to strengthen his club. He is ready to trade any player on his team. The time limit on interclub deals expires on Tuesday and before that time it is said that McGraw will make at least one trade. It is reported that Bill Terry will leave the Giants and so will Irish Meusel.

Hornsby Is Satisfied.

Hornsby, however, is satisfied with his ball club as it stands and McGraw will not be able to pass either Terry or Meusel on to the Cardinals. Right now Rajah is concentrating on the task of keeping the Cardinals going at the speed they have been traveling since they came East. They beat the Cubs in their final game in Chicago; won the only two games played in Philadelphia and have won three straight from the Giants.
It was not until the sixth inning that the Cardinals broke through the defense of Fred Fitzsimmons yesterday. Then they scored a run on a double by Blades, a sacrifice by Douthit and a wild pitch. That run not only tied the score but started the Cardinals on a batting rampage, and before the game ended nine more St. Louis runs crossed the plate.
Lester Bell reached first in the seventh inning, when Farrell fumbled his grounder. He stole second, being assisted by a short passed ball. O'Farrell grounded to Farrell, and Bell reached third on the play. Then Fitzsimmons obliged with another wild pitch and Bell dashed over the plate.

Davies Is Pounded.

Terry batted for Fitzsimmons in the last half of the seventh. When the eighth started, Davies was pitching for the Giants. Douthit reached first on Lindstrom's error. Hornsby walked. Bottomley bunted, but only forced Douthit at third. Mueller singled to left and Hornsby scored. Bell singled to right and Bottomley raced over the plate. O'Farrell doubled to center field, scoring Mueller and Bell.
Blades started the rally in the ninth inning with a single to left field. Douthit walked. Hornsby beat out an infield hit, filling the bases. Bottomley walked, forcing in Blades. Farrell threw out Mueller, and Douthit crossed the plate. Bell smashed a single to center and Hornsby and Bottomley paraded home.

Akron Track Opens.

AKRON, O., June 12.—The summer running horse meeting of the Akron Racing Association opened at Northampton Park, near here today. It will continue 19 days. More than 700 thoroughbreds are quartered at the track, and more are arriving. Seven races a day are planned.

Wesleyan Captain Named.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., June 12.—Jesse Anderson of Fairbury (Ill.) was yesterday elected captain of the 1927 Illinois Wesleyan University track team. He has the distinction of being the first man in the 50 years of Wesleyan's history to be honored with three major sport captaincies during his career.

Game They Helped Win Is Protested

Pitcher Hansen and Catcher Bone, Lyon School battery, went the full route yesterday and defeated Laclede School for the Public School League baseball championship at St. Louis University field. Hansen was hit freely but managed to tighten sufficiently in the pinches to win, 9 to 7.

Public School League Final, Won by Lyon School, Must Be Replayed, Committee Rules

Protest of Laclede School Team, Following Defeat 9 to 7, Is Sustained After Appeal to Major League Umpire—Replay to Be Held Monday, at St. L. U. Field.

Lyon School defeated Laclede, 9 to 7, yesterday at St. Louis University Field in the final game for the Post-Dispatch Public School League trophy and medals but a committee at the Board of Education this morning ordered the game replayed after hearing a protest.
The replayed game will take place Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. Louis University field. The umpires will be McShane and Von Dach.
The play on which the protest was based by Laclede occurred in Laclede's half of the last inning. One was out at the time and none on base. There wert two strikes on Buckley and the next one was a foul tip which was caught between the chest protector and body of the catcher.
Umpire Blankenmeister ruled the batter out. The committee, after consulting the rule book and taking counsel of George Sisler and Umpire Connolly, decided that the ruling was incorrect and that a replay was necessary.

Laclede Rallies.

Laclede rallied in the late innings in yesterday's game and overcame a lead registered by Lyon in the early sessions on the wildness of Pitcher Budde of Laclede and some timely hitting, only to have their opponents win in the seventh.
Lyon filled the bases in the first inning on three walks and Ueva cleared the bases with what should have been a single, but which went for a triple when mishandled.
Four hits accounted for three more runs in the fourth inning, after a single one had been scored in the third.
Laclede went after the game, starting in the fourth, and by the sixth had tied the score. Lyon counted two in their half of the ninth and held Laclede runless in the latter half, winning the game.

Twin Features At Latonia

Two-Year-Old Fillies to Run in Clipsetta, Sprinters in Quickstep Handicap.

By the Associated Press.
LATONIA, Ky., June 12.—Showers during the night brought about changed track conditions for the running today of Latonia's twin features, the Clipsetta Stakes and the Quickstep Handicap.
The Clipsetta, for two-year-old fillies, over the five and one-half furlong route, drew a field of seven probable starters—H. P. Gardner's Thirteen Sixty, L. T. Cooper's Ethel Dear, Gallagher and Combs' Mary Jane, E. J. Holland's Krick, E. B. McLean's Floranada, J. T. Weaver's Sincerely and Keenland Stud's Joan de Albret.
A purse of $5000 is the stake, the same as that in the Quickstep, for which 15 of the shiftiest sprinters in these parts have been named to contest over six furlongs. In this Audley Farm's Princess Doreen was given top weight, 130 pounds. H. G. Bedwell's Senator Norris comes next with 119; Arcady and Sunsard, 113 each, and the others scaling down to 97 pounds assigned Champ de Mars, representative of the Keenland Stud.

Differences Settled.

KANSAS CITY, June 12.—The differences between Danny Boone, infielder, and Manager Spencer A. Abbott of the Kansas City American Association baseball team, were straightened out at a meeting and Boone will stay with the team. It was announced last night that Boone would be dropped because of friction with Manager Abbott.

Jess Sweetser Is Rushed From Ship to Hospital

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, June 12.—Jess Sweetser, first American-born to bring back the British Amateur Golf Championship, has paid dearly, for today he lies in a hospital at Bronxville, N. Y., recuperating from an illness that attacked him when he sailed across the Atlantic on his quest.
And the great American event, the Amateur at Baltusrol in September, when it had been predicted Jess would meet the two-year king, Bobby Jones, in the "international" contest that would decide the world amateur championship, will be without him. So will the open at the Scioto Country Club, Columbus, next month.
A long rest after influenza and nervous strain has been ordered by his physician, Dr. B. M. Dear, who says Sweetser soon will be fully recovered, but must not tax himself again this year in championship play. The champion will undergo a complete examination immediately and perhaps will remain at the hospital for some time.

Ill Before Start of Tournament.

Few in America, and for that matter, few in Britain, knew what Sweetser suffered to win the coveted crown at Muirfield. Before the amateur tournament started, he had suffered seriously from a cold while crossing the Atlantic and the two weeks of heavy weather in London was far from beneficial.
Members of the golfing party with which he returned on the Aquitania yesterday told how he collapsed after a practice round at Muirfield on the eve of the title play and was carried from the course by big Jesse Guilford, a Walker Cup teammate from Boston. Only the withdrawal of his opponent the next day saved him then, they said.
A day of rest found him able to carry on, but the night before the semifinals, nerve strain and cold had gained steadily and he remained awake, much of the time massaging a strained wrist suffered in the semifinals.
He went into the final clash, against Alexander Simpson, on grit alone, according to Francis Oulmet of Boston, who described the match as one of the most remarkable demonstrations he ever had seen, with the beaten Scots lifting the American to their shoulders at the end.

Prize Trophy Forgotten.

Then came St. Andrews and the Walker Cup play with the former college and open champion of America refusing to lay down arms. And then the journey home to the United States with doctors in attendance almost constantly.
A special cutter, the Manhattan, swung alongside the Aquitania yesterday at Quarantine and slowly down the rope ladder came the hero of the golfing world. He was carried to the side in a chair although he assured his attendants that he was fit to walk. From the Battery he was rushed to the Lawrence Park Hospital in Bronxville, N. Y., by automobile.
So Jess Sweetser, the conqueror, returned, greeted by only a few friends, the cup that was in his baggage on its first visit to America, forgotten in the haste for a quick return to full health.

EDDIE HELD SCORES 72 IN PRO-AMATEUR EVENT AT NORMANDIE CLUB

Chris Kenney, Sunset, and K. Kerkenhoff, Forest Park, won the best ball professional-amateur tournament yesterday at Normandie, turning in a best ball score of 68. Three teams were tied for second with 69's. They were Eddie Held and Earl Whatley, John Manion and S. B. Waggoner and Jack Burns and R. Gates. Kenney and Held were rated along with the professionals as "special amateurs."
Jim Pairman, veteran Riverview professional, had the best score in his class, making the course in 73. Eddie Held won the special amateur prize with a 72 and Kerkenhoff and Wagoner tied for the amateur trophy with 80's.
Pairman, W. R. Davidson, Bill Medart and L. E. Cornelius made up the foursome with the best ball, a 67. Yesterday the professionals agreed to accept a challenge from a group of Kansas City professionals for an inter-city match here June 21. Six or eight men will represent each side.

Reconstructed Yankees, In Lead by 9 Games, Open Series With Browns Today

Ruth and Meusel Only Members of Team Who Were Regulars While Huggins' Men Were Winning Pennants — Zachary Likely to Pitch for St. Louis.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Miller Huggins and his reconstructed Yankees, who have knocked all the American League dope awry and incidentally have knocked the stuffing out of all opposing pitching staffs, will strut their stuff at Sportsman's Park this afternoon in the first game of a series of four, unless the weather takes a cash wallop at Phil Ball.
Sisler and his Brownies are in seventh place, and though they have won 11 of their last 16 games, they are still 19½ games behind the league-leading Yankees. But nevertheless and notwithstanding, the series opening today promises more in the way of popular interest than any series that has been played thus far in St. Louis in either league.
In the first place, Babe Ruth, the lambasting Bambino, is back in his home-run stride, and perhaps he will set a new long-distance record by hitting a ball over the Y. M. C. A. Building. He already has knocked 21 circuit wallops and he will be interested in testing the distance to the right-field pavilion and all points east.

A New Infield.

Then there will be that remarkable infield of the Yankees to be inspected. When the Yankees were winning pennants a few years back and helping to make Col. Ruppert forget that his brewery was not brewing, Wallie Pipp played first, Aaron Ward was at second, Everett Scott at short and Joe Dugan at third. Pipp is with the Reds, Scott is with the White Sox, Ward is through and Dugan has a lame prop. The infield is no more, but Huggins has another infield. Lou Gehrig is at first, Lazerri at second, Koenig at short and Gazella at third, while Dugan recovers.
Two-thirds of the old outfield remain, and as the Yankees lined up yesterday in scoring their fourth straight victory at the expense of the Tigers, Ruth and Bob Meusel were the only members of the team who were regulars during the Yankees' pennant days.

Hats Off to Huggins.

There's reconstruction for you. Hats must be doffed to Miller Huggins. A real reorganizer, to take a flock of minor leaguers and mould them into a team that now is nine games ahead of its nearest rival in the race for the pennant.
Huggins has accomplished wonders. He not only has rebuilt the team, but he has changed Babe Ruth's outlook on life and managers. A year ago Ruth said Huggins was a lemon, a poor fish, and that the Yankees had succeeded in spite of Huggins, not because of him. But now Ruth pays high tribute to Hug, and says he is a great little manager. He must be, and perhaps it would not be amiss whiel the Yankees are here, or Ball and Bill Friel and Manager George Sisler to call Huggins to a conference and ask him to explain how he does it. The Browns could use some of Miller Huggins' pennant-winning and team-building vision.

To Shake or Not to Shake.

The series with the Yankees, as previously told, will be an important one for the Browns in more ways than one. The four games will test the team and go far toward telling whether the fine showing at home is an indication that the poor statr of the team was due the poor start of the team was due the Browns come through with flying colors the team probably will go on through the season without being shaken up. If the series is a rout for the Browns, there is sure to be action that may blast several athletes and perhaps others from their jobs.

McManus' Hit Wins.

Gaston scored a 4—3 victory over the Boston Red Sox yesterday in the final of the series, thanks to a tenth inning rally featured by Marty McManus' single with the bases filled, driving in the tying and winning runs.
Gaston and Howard Ehmke pitched brilliantly and neither team scored until the seventh, when the Browns pushed over a run on Durst's double, Dixon's sacrifice bunt and Gerber's sacrifice fly.
Boston tied the score in the eighth on a walk to Rigney, a wild pitch and Bratche's single past Melillo, and went ahead in the ninth when Regan reached second on Williams' muff of his line drive, advanced on a sacrifice and scored on Bischoff's single. With two down in the Browns' half of the ninth, Durst tripled to center and scored when Gene Robertson, batting for Dixon, tripled against the right center field wall.
Flagstead again put the Sox in the lead in the tenth, hitting into the left-field bleachers for a homer.
Hargrave struck out to start the Brownie tenth, batting for Gaston, but Rice singled to right and reached third on Melillo's pop double to center. Sisler was passed intentionally, and after Williams fouled out, McManus came through with his timely single to left, a low line hit that won the game.

JAPAN LEADS MEXICO IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

MEXICO CITY, June 12.—Japan swept victoriously through the first two matches with Mexico here yesterday in the American Zone competition for the Davis Cup which the United States holds.
Takeichi Harada of Japan, playing brilliantly, defeated A. Unda, his Mexican opponent in straight sets 6—2, 6—4, 6—4. Unda, although he put up a plucky fight, was plainly outclassed by Harada who drove hard and showed excellent court generalship.
The second match between Teizo Toba of Japan and Manuel Llano, was won by the former, 6—1, 3—6, 7—5, 6—2; the play being inferior to the first match. Toba won by great aggressiveness, keeping constantly after his rival.
Japan seemingly has a good chance to win the doubles match today which would eliminate Mexico from Davis Cup competition this year.

SYLVESTER BRYAN, NEW YORK LAWYER, KILLS HIMSELF

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Sylvester Bryan, 40 years old, lawyer and son of the late Edward Payson Bryan, Theodore P. Shonts' predecessor as president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. and the man who built the subway to Harlem, ended his life yesterday. "Suicide from despondency" was the Coroner's verdict.

Going to an upstairs room in the home of his mother, Mrs. Arabella W. Bryan, at Bound Brook, N. J., where he lived with his wife, a niece of former Justice Morgan J. O'Brien of this city, and their five children, Bryan stabbed himself with a pair of pruning shears. He died in a hospital.

The family told the Coroner that Bryan had been subject to melancholy and lately had kept to himself. Once before, the Coroner said, he was told the lawyer had made a similar attempt.

In 1909 it was formally announced that Mr. Bryan and Miss Alice Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of John T. O'Brien, had been wedded secretly two years earlier at the Church of the Holy Name. Opposition by both families, Mr. Bryan being Protestant, and his bride a Catholic, kept them apart, as well as their youth, the bride being then 18 and he 20. In the spring of 1908 Mr. Bryan made a trip from Europe to reach his bride, who underwent an appendicitis operation, yet it was not until the following May that public announcement of the wedding was made.

Edward Payson Bryan, his father, died in San Juan, Porto Rico, in 1910, while visiting a son. He had risen from a telegraph operator on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad to a superintendency, became noted as a traffic expert while general manager of the St. Louis Terminal Railroad Association and was called to the Interborough as vice president in 1900.

THREE MEN LOSE LIVES IN NORTHERN ILLINOIS STORM

Injuries Suffered by a Number of Others and Property Damage Is Heavy.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Chicago and Northern Illinois today counted the loss of three lives, injury of a number of persons and heavy property damage done by an electrical storm last night.

Near Freeport and Rockford, Ill., three deaths were reported as the result of the storm and a cloudburst which swelled the waters of the Pecatonica River and submerged the lowlands. The dead are Frank J. Killums of Calona, William Cooney of Rockford and Ephraim Drivelbess of Freeport.

Killums and William H. Willsey, telephone linemen, were attempting to cross the Pecatonica to repair fallen wires when the storm broke and the waters carried them away. Killums drowned and rescuers found Willsey near death in midstream. His condition is serious.

Cooney was run down and killed by a motor car at Rockford, when he was blinded by blinding rain at a street intersection, and Drivelbess died from a bolt of lightning which struck a barn in which he had taken refuge.

Franz Molnar Weds Again.

BUDAPEST, June 12.—Franz Molnar, Hungarian playwright, was married yesterday to Lili Darvas, an actress. She is his third wife. His second wife, Sari Fedak, a favorite of the Budapest stage, divorced him last October on the ground of desertion. Molnar divorced his first wife three years ago.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

PUZZLED—The habit of calling inhabitants of the United States Americans probably arose from the fact that any other distinctive title is awkward. Canada lends itself easily to the noun Canadian; Mexico, to Mexican, etc. But the United States can hardly be twisted into a name for their inhabitants. Americans are most conveniently designated as such.

THELMA—The Chain of Rocks is above Sawyer's Bend in the Mississippi River; it is sometimes called the Grand Chain; but that distinction does not belong to these rocks, the "Grand Chain of Rocks" proper being below Cape Girardeau. The chain commences at the intake tower of the new waterworks, opposite to Chouteau Island. At the head of the chain on the Missouri side there was, in 1837, an island called Wilson's Island, which disappeared a few years since. The Chain of Rocks from its head to the foot was about three miles in length and consisted of a series of flat rocks shoving out from the Missouri side, sloping and extending about half way toward the Illinois side of the river. At a low state of water they rose above the surface of the river, and were at all times a menace to navigation. In 1868 City Engineer Homer erected a dyke from the Chain of Rocks, extending it out 1600 feet. He then planned a dyke at an angle from the former one to cross the bend to the head of Cabaret Island, which was designed to throw the channel on the east side of the island. After expending $60,000 the city abandoned the scheme.

C. M. P.—The people of St. Louis were misled into a premature celebration of peace on Thursday, Nov. 7, 1918. The celebration was based on false reports that the armistice terms had been signed by the German delegates and that war was over. The armistice was signed Nov. 11, 1918.

F. B. M.—Residents of the District of Columbia have no vote. Many residents of the district keep their residence elsewhere and go home to vote. The district was established as the seat of the United States Government by act of Congress in 1790 and 1791. Until 1871 there were three governments in the district—Georgetown, under a Mayor and City Council; the part originally laid out as the City of Washington, under commissioners, and the remainder of the district, under the "justices of the levy court." These three governments were abolished June 1, 1871, and the whole district was placed under a territorial form of government entitled the "District of Columbia," with a Governor, a Council, a House of Delegates, a secretary and boards of health and public works. This form of government was abolished by Congress June 20, 1874, and a temporary government consisting of three commissioners appointed by the President was organized in its place. This government continued until July 1, 1878, when by an act of Congress, approved June 11, the same year, it was succeeded by the present permanent form of municipal government, in which the principal executive power is vested in a board of three commissioners appointed by the President.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

LAW—It is not necessary for you to mention the relatives in queston when making the will.

S. M.—You may be able to sue your neighbor for damages. Consult a lawyer.

INQUIRER—Report the facts to the police, and ask them to put a stop to the annoyances in question.

A. H. C.—Report the facts to the police and ask them to put a stop to the persons parking in front of your home for 24 hours, every day.

E. J.—An heir cannot compel the administrator to furnish him with a statement before he files his settlement in the Probate Court.

MOTHER'S SON—She can keep him from getting a divorce if he has no good ground for divorce, or if he has been at fault himself. She should consult a lawyer.

C. C.—The Government can collect the back taxes and penalties. Report the facts to the Collector of Internal Revenue in the Custom House, Eighth and Olive streets.

YOUNG TENANT—The owner cannot compel you to show your flat or to let him put up a "For Rent" sign in it, unless you agreed to allow this. If a tenant has no lease, he has to give the owner one month's written notice, served not later than the day before the rent day, before vacating.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

C. C.—Try using a hot foot bath with a tablespoonful of the following powder dissolved in it: Powdered alum, 1 ounce; rock salt and borax, of each 2 ounces. Mix. Use 1 tablespoonful in hot foot bath night and morning. After drying thoroughly dust on the following powder: Subnitrate of bismuth, powdered oleate of zinc, of each 1 ounce. Mix well and dust on feet after bathing and drying as directed.

APPRECIATION. — For the "goose flesh" on the arms, massage each arm for about 20 minutes, then wash them in tepid water, followed by rubbing them hard with a crash towel and anoint thoroughly with a mixture made by taking borax, 110 grains; carbonate of potassium, 40 grains; rose water, 15 ounces; cologne water, 4 drachms; talcum powder, 12 drachms; glycerine, 5 drachms; tincture of benzoin, 3 drachms.

CURIOUS—Repeat your question enclosing stamped envelope for reply.

MRS. D. — You can get such treatment at the city dispensary, Thirteenth and Carroll streets, free of charge. Also all of the larger hospitals in St. Louis, as Barnes, Mullanphy, St. Luke's, St. John's and St. Mary's, have free clinics for the treatment of outdoor patients, including eye diseases. If the case is, as you suspect, a venereal one you should apply at Room 28, Municipal Courts Building.

THANKS—Only a skilled dentist well provided with the proper instruments can remove the tartar from the teeth, and treat the gums that are in such a poor condition. As a matter of relieving the irritation to some extent a mouth wash composed of the following might prove of some benefit: Teaspoonful of the chlorate of potash to a teacup of water used two or three times daily.

INJUNCTION DENIED TO SELLER OF RACE TRACK INFORMATION

His Argument That He Dealt in Legitimate Advice Rejected in Plea to Stop Arrests.

Robert Anderson, who deals in exclusive race track information, believes that his trade is a profession and as legitimate as that of the lawyer who sells advice to clients. He so argued yesterday before Judge Calhoun in seeking an injunction to prevent police from raiding his office at 408 Washington avenue.

Anderson was arrested Tuesday by Police Sergeant Hunt who testified that Anderson took a marked $5 bill in exchange for a list of six "sure winners" at the Fairmount track. Anderson argued that he was not a gambler, maintaining that his recommendations as to horses were based on 30 years of study in and about race tracks. Judge Calhoun refused the injunction, upholding the police.

ADMITS 'BORROWING' $150,000

That's the Way Defaulting Cashiers Go, Says Kansan.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 12.—Edward S. Doison, charged with wrecking the Farmers' State Bank of McCune, Kan., five years ago, admitted here last night that he took $150,000 from the bank for "investments" in a period of 11 years.

Doison, who was arrested in Louisville, Ky., several days ago, was being returned to Crawford County, Kan. "It's the same old story," he said. "I am not a criminal. I 'borrowed' the money. That's the way defaulting cashiers go. They don't mean to steal. When I left the bank I was a poor man."

$10,000 VERDICT AGAINST BANK FOR FALSE ARREST

Tulsa Accountant Alleged He Was Held in Cell Here for 19 Hours.

A jury in Circuit Judge Miller's court yesterday awarded $10,000 to George A. Lackey, 30 years old, of Tulsa, Ok., a public accountant, in his suit against the Farmers and Merchants' Trust Co., Grand boulevard and Gravois avenue, for humiliation, inconvenience and disgrace when arrested and held in jail for 19 hours. The arrest took place Dec. 16, 1924.

Lackey and two companions, Harry Duncan and Sylvester Merstetter, had gone to the neighborhood of the bank to see about buying a sandwich shop and were busy checking up traffic in the vicinity when a policeman, who was made suspicious by their actions, questioned them and took them into the bank.

According to Lackey and his companions the policeman was directed by Frank J. Wiget, president of the defendant company, to "take them down," but Wiget denied ordering their arrest. Duncan and Merstetter also have similar suits pending against the trust company.

$125-A-MONTH TELLER, FIANCE OF HEIRESS, KILLS HIMSELF

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 12.—A bank teller's salary of $125 a month and an engagement with the daughter of a wealthy merchant, evidently could not be reconciled in the mind of Glenwood G. Hines, who killed himself with a revolver here yesterday. He is believed to have feared marriage to him would have lowered her plane of living.

When the 23-year-old teller's body was found early yesterday morning in the washroom of the bank it was at first believed there might be irregularities in his books or that Miss Louise Vanderschmidt, his 21-year-old sweetheart since school days had quarreled with him. A check-up by an auditor for his bonding company, however, showed everything to be correct and all straggling ends of unfinished business cared for.

The theory of a lover's quarrel was dissipated when it was found that Miss Vanderschmidt, who has been in Andover, Mass., a month, had been writing him twice a day.

Within two hours after his body was found, the mail from the East brought the usual morning letter even though Miss Vanderschmidt is now motoring home with relatives. Radio telegrams were broadcast yesterday throughout the East in an attempt to reach Miss Vanderschmidt to tell her of her sweetheart's death. Hines left a note to her which remains unopened.

SAYS GUNMEN WERE ACTIVE AT POLLS FOR WOMAN

Chicago Congressman Asks Federal Inquiry Into Work of Gangsters in Behalf of His Opponent.

DECLARES BALLOTS WERE CHANGED

Offers Resolution Saying Gangsters Threatened Committeemen With "Ride to the Cemetery."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The Department of Justice has been asked to investigate the reported activity of gangsters and "well-known gunmen" in behalf of a woman candidate in the recent Republican primary in Chicago.

Representative Britten, incumbent from the Ninth Illinois District, and successful candidate for renomination, introduced a resolution requesting the department to ascertain "the extent to which constitutional rights of citizens were interfered with."

He prefaced the resolution with a declaration that armed gangsters and gunmen entered "various polling places in Chicago and terrorized not only the officials, but also interfered with the rights of citizens," and that precinct committeemen "under threat of murder unlawfully changed ballots to favor Bertha Baur (his opponent).

Justice Department officials declined to comment upon the resolution, but pointed out that unless there is a breakdown of State and municipal enforcement agencies, the Federal Government has no control over primary contests.

The resolution charged that the gunmen publicly threatened precinct committeeman with "a ride to the cemetery" if their precincts were not carrie for Bertha Baur.

In view of this and the report that the gunmen received $1000 each for their work, Britten said, that he was hopeful the department would start an inquiry.

ELECTRICITY FROM AIRPLANE CLEARS THE SKY OF CLOUDS

Aviators Scatter Negative Charges Over Area of 10 Square Miles in Connecticut.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 12.—Ten square miles of atmosphere over Southern Hartford and Wethersfield were made cloud-proof yesterday by the distribution of a negative electrical charge at an altitude of 3000 feet by James H. Dennison and Sergt. S. J. Daly, flying in a specially equipped De Haviland plane.

Within a few minutes the sky, formerly studded with "dry" clouds made up largely of dust particles, was clear. For several hours all similar clouds approaching the charge area dispersed.

Dennison announced that another flight probably would be made on the first cloudy or foggy day next week. The results, he predicted, would be that the area treated would be cleared of all clouds and fog, while the surrounding territory would remain overcast.

CHILEANS WANT VOTE IN TACNA

Opinion of U. S. Chairman as to Impracticability Is Questioned.

By the Associated Press.

TACNA, Chile, June 12.—The Chilean members of the Tacna-Arica plebiscite delegation have considered the situation brought about by the resolution of Gen. Lassiter, chairman of the commission, with regard to a plebiscite at the present time being impossible. The delegation decided that the American delegation, in saying that a plebiscite was impractical, exceeded the powers given it by the award of President Coolidge, since the award asserted that the plebiscite was possible, and it was impossible for the commission to prejudge a referendum which had not yet occurred.

The decision of the delegation was referred to the Government at Santiago and definite instructions concerning the final policy of Chile in the situation are expected soon. The American delegation is in constant lengthy communication with Washington and is being kept in touch with developments in the national capital.

BRITISH TIGHTEN CONTROL IN EGYPT AND NATIVES BOW SULLENLY TO POMPOUS RULE

Commissioner Lord Lloyd Maintains Military Show of Strength and Rides Through Streets at 40 Miles an Hour to Tea.

This is the first of a series of seven articles describing the situation that exists in Egypt—an atmosphere charged with suspicion, fear and hatred.

By JOHN GUNTHER.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1926.)

CAIRO, Egypt, May 14.—Walking down the Chareh Kasr-El-Nil, a street cloaking every kind of Oriental mystery with new western buildings, I hear a commotion. First comes a piercing whistle from the English traffic policeman under his white umbrella. Then I hear the long wail of a siren, then the chug-chug of motor cycles slowing for a turn. Then a trumpet blast splits the sultry heat.

I notice the conglomerate crowd along the street diving for shelter. A turbaned Arab wheels his donkey cart into an alley. The taxis stop tooting and dive toward the curb. Along the sidewalks the natives hunch against the buildings. Pause. Then—whizz!

A cavalcade is swinging round the corner. First are motor cycles. They carry khaki-clad soldiers, armed with revolvers. Another siren wails out as the motor cycles pick up speed. They are doing 40 miles an hour, lurching down the dusty boulevard. Behind the motor cycles is a car. It is full of soldiers, rifles, sticking out like Spears. Behind the car is another car. Two British officers sit with the chauffeur. In the tonneau is a military looking gentleman and his wife. The cavalcade flashes by. More motor cycles bring up the rear. Again a siren blast. Again the trumpets.

Sullen Crowds.

I watch the crowds. They watch the cars. Traffic resumes sullenly. The boulevard turns to life again.

It is Lord Lloyd, New British high commissioner, going out to tea.

Half a dozen times a week that little drama enacts itself through the streets of Cairo. I saw it twice today. The Egyptians don't like it. Neither do most of the Europeans. But what can they do?

Lloyd is the chief British official in Egypt; as such he is virtually the ruler of Egypt. He has a position to maintain. The political situation is ticklish. Political assassination has turned Egyptian soil red a dozen times in five years. The last victim was one of Lloyd's predecessors, Sir Lee Stack, the sirdar. He was killed by a bomb tossed in his car as he motored down that same street—the Chareh Kasr-El-Nil.

And Lord Lloyd's swift cavalcade, careening at dizzy speed through a labyrinth of traffic, typifies very nicely the unrest in Egypt, the dominant military frown of the British, the slow, sullen resentment of the Egyptians.

The cavalcade typifies, too, something in Lloyd's character. He is far different from the gentle Allenby, high commissioner for five years, who wandered around the streets alone, talking Arabic with the natives. The English colony itself tells a story about Lloyd. Before he came to Egypt he was Governor-General of Bombay. There the Prince of Wales visited him. "I never knew how royalty lived," said the Prince, "until I stayed with George Lloyd."

Rule or Get Out.

Of course Lloyd has a tradition, an imperial tradition, to maintain. He can look back to the men who preceded him in Egypt—Cromer, "Kitchener Rex," as the Egyptians call him; Stack, who was murdered; even Allenby himself, who drove the Turk out of Jerusalem.

And of course anyone who pretends any knowledge whatever of the Egyptian situation must admit that some such course is necessary. The Egyptians are Orientals. They take concession as a sign of weakness. They understand conquest—they have understood little else during 5000 years of history—and better than anything in the world, they understand a despot. They understand a policy like Lloyd's.

True, Egypt is now, technically, a kingdom. After five years of effort, culminating 40 years of occupation, Allenby forced a quasi-independent Egypt down Lloyd George's throat in 1922 as the only possible solution of a situation that had become a positive cancer. As Allenby saw it, and as British policy had seen it for a decade, there were only three courses open.

The first was to give Egypt a real independence. But that was impossible. No country with a 92 per cent rate of illiteracy deserves self-government. No nationality as perversely and obtusely obscurantist as the Egyptian is capable of it. Besides, Egypt controls the Suez Canal. The Suez Canal is a matter of some importance to the British Empire.

One "In-Between" Course.

The second course would be to maintain perpetually an unequivocal British protectorate. Allenby said it would take a standing army of 200,000 soldiers. A perpetual protectorate, for this and other reasons, was voted down. As a recognized fact a protectorate is contrary to present-day British policy.

The only course remaining was something in between—something trying to bridge the two stools. The result is the kingdom. Egypt has a King, a cabinet, a parliament; it has (theoretically) absolute charge of internal affairs. But when the kingdom was granted in 1922 Britain reserved to herself four points:

1. The security of the communications of the British empire in Egypt; i. e., the Suez canal to remain in British control.

2. The defense of Egypt against all foreign aggression or interference, direct or indirect.

3. The protection of foreign interests in Egypt.

4. Absolute and unequivocal rights in the Sudan.

Egypt accepted this agreement; Allenby went home sure he had done the best thing for both countries; for four years now the system has been working. It has not worked too well. Criticism centers on the fact that it is a compromise. Egypt is not independent nor anywhere near it; yet it is "recognized" as independent by foreign powers, including the United States.

King Comes to Lloyd.

Meanwhile, Lord Lloyd has come out as high commissioner. At the British residency, along the banks of the Nile, he receives the King, when it is necessary to receive the King, and the Prime Minister also, when the Prime Minister has something on his mind. At the residency gates are soldiers—big black fellows, Sudanese from the far interior—in uniforms of a bright angelic blue. They carry guns and bayonets.

Again along the Chareh Kasr-El-Nie I see the cavalcade tear by, whipping up dust, stinging Arabs and Egyptians and Greeks and Armenians and Berbers and others of the cosmopolitan motley of Egypt to shelter. And I watch the faces of these Egyptians as they wait till the streets are clear to other traffic—faces not at all inscrutable, but sullen, bitter, vengeful.

SAYS ALLIES BETRAYED ITALY DURING WAR

Brother of Mussolini Declares Secret Papers Disclose Double Dealing by Powers.

Special Cable to Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

ROME, June 12.—Arnaldo Mussolini, brother of the Dictator, writes in the Popolo d'Italia, the Premier's Milan paper, that he has proof that France, England and Russia betrayed Italy during the World War.

Arnaldo says he has had access to papers in the possession of the soviet Government, dating back to the Czarist regime, which make the betrayal clear. In 1916, he declares, England, France and Russia agreed secretly to oppose Italy's demand for Smyrna in Asia Minor because they did not not want Italy's aggrandizement.

The writer also accuses President Wilson of plotting in 1919 to prevent Fiume from becoming Italian, adding:

"The treachery so unspeakably prepared was thus accomplished in the coldest blood. Italy did not get Smyrna and the Greeks were easily defeated by the Turks. The Russian documents are really precious for now Italians know they were betrayed by their allies in the war, as they were betrayed by their own liberal governments in the war as well in peace.

"Italians will remember this treachery and traitors must not hope it will be forgotten until Italy has obtained her just dues. Italy's finest days are not born yet."

Arnaldo Mussolini, however, does not announce any intention of publishing a translation of the documents.

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD QUITS WALTON LEAGUE

By the Associated Press.

OWOSSO, Mich., June 12.—James Oliver Curwood, writer and one of the nation's leading conservationists, today resigned as a director of the Izaak Walton League of America and as a member of the editorial staff of its magazine, Outdoor America. The resignation was contained in a letter to Charles W. Folds of Chicago, president of the league.

"I am taking this rather tardy action," the letter said, "because never in the history of American sportsmanship has a more prejudiced or unfair series of acts been perpetrated than those which resulted in the dishonorable deposement at the Chicago convention of Bill Dilg, the man who has meant more for conservation in this country and the world than any man who ever lived. In letting this course for myself, I take off my hat to Bill Dilg and glory in the true American spirit and sportsmanship which made him resent an insult—after having worked four years without a cent of salary—the Nominating Committee's recommendation that he be given a pension of $6000 a year for life."

Smith's copy was picked up in Indiana about a year ago.

$75,000 GIVEN FOR CONCORDIA TOWER

$3,000,000 Seminary to Be Dedicated Tomorrow—100,000 Visitors Expected.

Three gifts of $25,000 each toward the completion of the Luther tower at the new Concordia Theological Seminary were announced yesterday at the triennial convention of the Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and Other States.

The donors are John A. Leschen, vice president of A. Leschen & Sons Rope Co.; Louis H. Waltke, president-treasurer of William Waltke & Co., and Theodore Lamprecht of New York, honorary president of the Lutheran Laymen's League. Lamprecht cabled his gift from Europe.

About $125,000 more is needed for the tower, and this is expected to be realized from contributions. A unique and monumental structure is contemplated, rising 120 feet from the ground. The base has been constructed at the junction of the administration, postgraduate, dormitory and library buildings. There is an archive room in the basement of the tower and a reception room on the ground floor. Radio Station KFUO may be installed in the tower, or a carilion may be placed there.

Dedication Tomorrow.

The new $3,000,000 seminary, which is at De Mun and San Bonita avenues, Clayton, will be dedicated with an impressive ceremony at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. One hundred thousand or more Lutherans are expected in the city for the day and the vanguard has begun to arrive.

A number of hotels will be taken over for a night or two by these visitors, while many of them will be entertained at homes of St. Louis Lutherans. Numerous special trains will be used to bring spectators here. The public tourist camp near Wellston will accommodate others who come by automobile.

Sale of the old Concordia Seminary at Jefferson avenue and Winnebago street was authorized by the synod convention yesterday, in a session at Holy Cross Church, Ohio avenue and Miami street. Details were left to synod officials. The seminary has been located there for 76 years.

Appropriations of $125,000 for a new dormitory, $15,000 for a training school and $5000 for a laboratory, for the Lutheran Normal School at Seward, Neb., were made by the convention. Another action provides $95,000 for a new administration building for a school of the synod at Conover, N. C.

The Lutheran Laymen's League yesterday presented $250,000 to the endowment fund for incapacitated pastors and teachers. This makes its gifts to the synod in the nine years of its existence total $2,600,000.

Vice Presidents Chosen.

Following are vice presidents chosen for the synod: The Rev. F. Brand of St. Louis, director of foreign missions; the Rev. J. W. Miller of Fort Wayne, Ind.; the Rev. Dr. W. Dallmann of Milwaukee, author of many religious books, and the Rev. H. Daib of Merrill, Wis., president of the Northern Wisconsin district of the synod.

The Rev. J. S. Bradac of Whiting, Ind., president of the Slovak Evangelical Lutheran Church of North America, addressing the convention, spoke of the doctrinal unity between the two church bodies. A radiogram of greetings was received from the Northern District of the Evangelical Lutheran Free Church, Saxony, Germany.

Continuing a doctrinal essay, the Rev. Dr. Francis Pieper, president of Concordia Seminary, said the synod has been called false teacher because it held to the faith of salvation by divine grace alone. He defended this belief, declaring that ignorance concerning the synod's stand was astounding.

Missionary Services Tomorrow.

"Whosoever really and truly believes that man is not saved by grace alone," he continued, is outside the pale of the Christian Church. Scripture knows only of one class of men. All are sinners. All are equally sinful by nature and because of their natural sinful condition and the sinful works which proceed from their sinful hearts merits God's wrath and punishment."

The Rev. F. H. Brun of Bay City, Mich., in an address last night advocated extension of the system of grade schools operated by the church, even if they could not be made as pretentious as public schools. This is necessary for the care of children's souls, he asserted.

Pulpits of the Lutheran churches of St. Louis and suburbs will be occupied tomorrow by visiting pastors and missionaries. All the sermons will be in support of the synod's missionary work, which it is desired to extend. Convention delegates visited the new seminary this afternoon. There will be a students' concert tonight at Roosevelt High School.

LEAGUE ATTACHES ARRESTED AS FASCISTI FIGHT ANTIS

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 12.—Diplomatic complications have arisen as a result of the arrest of several Italian attaches of the League of Nations who were involved in a fight last night over anti-fascist demonstrations by Socialists. Of the men arrested two are secretaries on the staff of the League and one is attached to the staff of the International Labor Commission. They are charged with participation in a riotous mass meeting as members of a Fascist group which clashed with the Socialists when a communist at the meeting shouted, "Mussolini is an assassin"

The prisoners, who are attached to the Cabinet of Prof. Bernardo Attolico, Italian Asisstant Secretary-General of the League, waived the diplomatic immunity, but police released them as it was decided that they could not waive immunity.

CHIASSO, Switzerland, June 12.—Clandestine meetings were held in several Italian towns yesterday to commemorate the second anniversary of the death of the Socialist Deputy Matteotti, murdered by Fascisti. A meeting in Rome was attended by delegates from the Democratic and Republican parties. Strong police cordons prevented sympathizers from approaching the place where Matteotti was kidnaped.

Workers in Udine marked the day by hoisting a large red flag to the top of a church tower. A secret meeting at the office of a Socialist paper in Milan was dispersed by a squad of armed Fascisti who smashed the office furniture, and Deputy Florio, Socialist, who presided, was injured.

Hurley Heads Chicago Fair Board.

CHICAGO, June 12.—Edward N. Hurley, former chairman of the United States Shipping Board and war-time head of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, yesterday was elected permanent chairman of the Chicago Centennial Exposition to be held in 1933 in commemoration of the establishment of Chicago as a village.

EXPERT TELLS WHY BOYS GO WRONG

Why boys go wrong was strikingly illustrated by Harrison Dobbs of Chicago, in an address at a luncheon of the Missouri Welfare League yesterday at the Missouri Hotel, with an analysis of the histories of boy gangsters he had traced to see just what fault in makeup or surroundings had sent them to Juvenile Court.

As superintendent of the Chicago Detention Home, Dobbs observes 6000 delinquents a year, and he formerly was psychologist of the Illinois Public Welfare Department. He cited the cases in urging that intelligent use of forces in church, school and allied agencies might "stop delinquency at its source" and do away with having to deal with workhouses, almshouses, juvenile courts and insane asylums.

Leo, leader of the gang, he related, got his first impetus downward when a horse which he had cared for when it was abandoned to die was taken away, unjustly, he thought, by its former owner and a policeman. He had become an automobile thief, and his further explanation was peculiar.

The Thrill of Flight.

"Did you ever feel the wind on your face when you're driving fast?" he asked Dobbs. "Well, did you ever feel the wind on your face when you're driving fast to get away from somebody? If you haven't, you've missed half your life."

Stanley was the son of foreign-born parents, who had tried to make him the best sort of American citizen by fine clothes that marked him off from his associates, multiple restrictions, music lessons and prospectively a private "prep" school. He missed the normal boy's rough-and-tumble and went after it himself.

Joe put his own case: "De old lady can't talk English enough to understand you, and any guy's mother and father that can't learn how to talk English, I don't belong to them." Dobbs remarked, "I wondered if the neighborhood school might not have done some good there if it had paid some attention to Joe's father and mother, rather than concentrating on Joe."

Wanted Money to Spend.

Rudolph at high school had got in with a crowd who had money, and wanted money himself to keep up with them. He was ambitious and had wanted to work, Dobbs added, "but was plunged pell-mell into an academic activity he was not in the least interested in, and so sought things to do that he was interested in."

"As I watched the Judge try to prescribe for those boys I thought, what a pity we place our interest in end products."

He related that of 97 senior boys in the home only eight had ever been in a community house, "the community's bulwark for stopping their problems at the source." Of 147 baseball players at the home, only a handful had been in organized games in the city parks. "These boys were athletes," he emphasized, "yet they were failing to accept the community's effort to aid in that direction."

CHANCES WANING FOR FARM RELIEF BILL IN SENATE

Haugen-McNary Measure Got an Impetus From Iowa Primary, but That Has Faded.

SIMMONS TRYING TO MUSTER VOTES

But His Labors Among Democrats in Behalf of Bill Seem Futile — Coolidge Hostile.

By CHARLES MICHELSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Hope of passing the Haugen-McNary farm relief bill, or any bill approximating it, is waning among supporters of the measure. The most favorable count in the Senate gives approximately 40 votes for the bill, but to attain this number 16 Democrats must vote for it and the count shows a dozen is generous an estimate of Democratic support that can be expected.

The result of the Iowa primaries caused a temporary gain in support of the bill, but that has disappeared. Various substitutes will be offered, notably one by Fess (Rep.) of Ohio and another by Lenroot (Rep.) of Wisconsin, but it is not anticipated any of these will come to a vote, as all the talk is of adjournment after the pending measure has been disposed of.

Coolidge Against Bill.

President Coolidge is understood to have let the Republican leaders know he would not sign the bill in its present form. Lenroot perhaps is closer to the White House than any other Senator so far as farm legislation is concerned, hence the substitute he has in mind is thought to cover the ultimate of what the President would accept. The Wisconsin Senator's offering provides for a Federal farm board, appointed by the President, but without any of the restrictions as to personnel that are in the Haugen and McNary bills.

"My amendment," said Lenroot, "gives substantially the same powers to the board as does the pending measure, except that it gives no power to levy an equalization fee or tax and is not required to take any particular steps with regard to the relief of agriculture.

"One hundred and fifty million dollars is appropriated to be used by the board in its discretion for the benefit of agriculture and it includes all agricultural products. If this board can work out any plan that will stand the test of constitutionality and economics, Congress next year can make such detailed plans for the further relief of agriculture as may be found practicable."

Simmons' Efforts Futile.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who has been doing missionary work among the Democrats for the Haugen-McNary bill, admits he does not see how votes can be mustered to pass it.

Supporting the bill, Senator Wheeler (Dem.) of Montana said yesterday that although it was "unquestionably economically unsound it was no more so than the tariff and as long as we have a tariff law the farmer should be allowed to get the benefit."

Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor) of Minnesota said that Senator Fess had "made more noise on the floor about this bill than all the other Senators put together and had proved his own contention that the less you know about a thing the more noise you make about it."

VATICAN ORGAN DOUBTS THAT CHRIST EVER WAS IN INDIA

Osservatore Romano Questions Authenticity of Alleged Proof of Prof. Roerich.

Copyright, 1926, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

ROME, June 12.—The Vatican organ, Osservatore Romano, comments on Prof. Roerich's reported discovery of a document proving that Jesus visited India, doubting the authenticity of the discovery. According to the article neither Christian tradition, nor any of the numerous heretical epistles, which for various reasons were not admitted to the New Testament, give any hint that Jesus ever made such a journey.

"Is not this the son of the carpenter and Mary? Do we not know him?" proves, according to the papal organ that Jesus was known thoroughly by his neighbors who would not talk disparagingly of one who had done such an unusual thing as to travel as far as India.

EXPORT OF OPIUM FROM INDIA WILL BE ENDED IN 10 YEARS

Shipments Except for Medicinal Purposes to Be Decreased Gradually Beginning in 1927.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 12.—Export of opium from India, except for medicinal purposes will cease in 10 years according to an announcement from the India office just made public.

The loss in revenue involved it was stated, will be $7,200,000 annually and to avoid too serious economic effect a gradual curtailment covering the 10 years, has been arranged. The first 10 per cent decrease will be effected in 1927 and the final export will take place in 1935.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The decision of the Government of India to end the export of opium is an important step in combatting misuse of the drug said Mrs. Helen Howell Moorhead, secretary of the Opium Research Committee of the Foreign Policy Association, today.

"This news is very important to Americans interested in opium," she said, "because the withdrawal of the American delegation from the conference at Geneva hinged largely on the question of the date when the suppression of smoking opium would begin."

SULTAN'S BODY HELD FOR DEBT

Italian Merchants Bar Its Removal Until $20,000 Is Paid.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1926.

LONDON, June 12.—According to reports received by the Turkish embassy in London, the body of the late Sultan Mehmet is kept as a surety by Italian merchants to whom the former Turkish ruler owed $20,000 for food and clothing used by himself and his family.

The court purveyor obtained from a Judge in San Remo, Italy, seals which they affixed to Villa Magnolia, the late Sultan's residence, and the body of the deceased ruler cannot be removed for interment at Damascus until the debt is settled.

The Sultan's relatives, including Caliph Abdul Medjid are so impoverished that they cannot pay the debt. They have appealed to Agha Khan and other prominent Indian Moslems for funds to release the dead ruler's body.

Proposed Increase in Car Fares.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I READ in your paper regarding an increase in car fare by the United Railways Co. I for one, as a voter and a taxpayer of St. Louis, wish to state that from what I have read in the papers at times regarding the raise in car fare by the U. R., I think that they are not asking for too much when they only ask for an 8-cent fare. I think they should have a 10-cent fare and 5 cents for children under 12 years of age. When men like the receiver, his general manager and other good men under them, without mentioning any names, have worked hard to get this company out of receivership, I think they should have this little increase without a word.

Some people are under the impression that when they put their fare in the fare box that it pays everything, but I wish to state that it is not a drop in the bucket when new track work costs about $55,000 a mile, new cars cost $10,000 to $11,000 each, paving between tracks costs 3½ per cent of their income, not saying a word about the tax that they pay the City of St. Louis and St. Louis County, as well as the payroll for 6000 employes each month, which money helps to keep up other business and pay other employes working for other firms. If some people will only stop and think a minute where this money goes to and what good it does I know they will quit kicking so much and will be willing to pay the fare increase so that they can retain the best service in the U. S. A. I have been in other large cities and have never seen any better car service than this city gets.

Golfers Want Good Courses.

NOW that the time is close at hand when the annual golf permits are sold to the public for the year beginning July 1, it would seem only fair that such purchasers should be given some assurance that they will get something for their money in the way of greens, etc., that are worthy of the name. To one who is familiar with conditions at the golf courses, it seems that there has been an entire lack of judgment, if not of intention also, in getting many of the greens into any better shape than is the average back lot. If it is a fact that golf permit money has been used for other purposes, it should be someone's business to put a stop to such practices.

It surely is an aggravation to meet out-of-town players on the grounds, and to hear from them how far superior the municipal courses are in other towns of larger and also smaller sizes than St. Louis, and to be told that the fairways are better than the greens are here. Why is it St. Louis is such a tail-ender on so many propositions of public interest? We do not expect a private club condition for our $10 charges, but it does seem as though there should be something to show for what money is collected.

The Recent Lynchings.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I AM attracted by the letter of Jesse W. Crow in a recent issue of the Post-Dispatch, and my wonderment now is that not only the colored people are not "amazed" at certain acts of the administration at Washington, but why the amazement of the white people of America should not be even greater because of that lack of administration sympathy for the colored people since that it proves, beyond any scintilla of doubt, that all so-called anti-lynch legislation is, in actuality, "Auntie Lynch," and meaningless to the colored people insofar as it relates to them in friendship in the meaning of the Constitution of the United States, which gives them equal rights with all other citizens of this country, the President not excepted.

And, referring to the Florida lynching, as well as to the one in Arkansas, as cited by Mr. Crow, there is only one thing for me, or any other man, white or colored, to say, and that is that every man connected with those inhuman outrages, against both God and man whether as principals or particeps criminis to it, will be damned hereafter, and no other interpretation of God's law can be made to justify a denial of that statement.

It even justifies me now in the belief that if we could trace the genealogy of every one of that mob and all other like mobs in American history, we would find it leading back as lineal descendants of Judas Iscariot and every member of that original infamy. And not only the mobs of this country, but the blood of these men is upon every man and woman in America who even refuses to cry out against this as the greatest curse upon America and civilization.

ARGUMENTS AGAINST ANNEXATION.

The first shot of the County Chamber of Commerce against annexation struck a grave defect in the city charter. The statement of the chamber speaks of a strong objection to annexation based on the provision of the charter which provides for the election of members of the Board of Aldermen by the city as a whole instead of by wards. The chamber urges that, on account of this provision, the county would have no representation on the Board of Aldermen, because the vote of the city would overwhelm the vote of the county.

When the charter was framed and submitted to the people for approval, the leaders of the Republican party, which controlled the city by a large majority, agreed that provision would be made for proportional representation, so that one party would not elect all the members of the Board of Aldermen. That promise has never been carried out, with the result not only that the wards are not represented by members elected by the wards, but that none but members of one party—it happens to be the Republican party—are on the Board of Aldermen. There is no opposition within the board, all the members representing one party, a situation universally acknowledged to be bad and productive of partisan and corrupt legislation.

This situation is not so bad for the city proper, where most of the interests of the wards are common interests. But when a large territory outside of the city, composed of widely differing elements living under widely differing conditions is brought under the city government, the objection takes on a grave aspect. The population in the county is justified in feeling that it might be governed and taxed without representation.

That defect however can be remedied. The charter can be amended, restoring ward representation and thus assuring the population in all parts of the county representation in the city government.

The remaining arguments of the County Chamber of Commerce are not nearly so strong. They are based largely on an assumption of well-being on the part of the towns and communities in the county which will not bear analysis as the county continues to increase in population. The condition of small towns and communities governing themselves and providing the necessaries of city life, such as sewage, police and fire protection, as they need and want them, appears pleasant and inviting. But the picture in reality is not nearly so attractive as it is in imagination. The cities, towns and communities mentioned in the County Chamber's statement have not the conveniences that they ought to have, and greatly lack sanitary sewage and adequate fire and police protection. As they grow larger and practically join each other and the city, the conditions pictured as the best possible will change radically. Each town having grown and improved by itself will find nothing within it co-ordinated with the other towns; neither streets, sewage, nor anything else. There will be a time when the problems of sewage, streets, police and other utilities and services will be insoluble without combination. Nearly all that has been done will have to be undone and made over again, at very great cost.

In addition to the interests pleaded by the chamber as separate to each town and community, there are certain common interests which can only be properly taken care of under one government, and the problems of which, affecting all in common, can only be worked out on a general plan.

All those communities which have grown up into good sized towns and which border the city can testify to the difficulties with which they are confronted in meeting their problems of sanitation, streets, police, and fire protection. And the parts of the county which are becoming thickly settled and where these problems are pressing are rapidly increasing.

The County Chamber speaks of the farm lands. A considerable part of the county is composed of farm land with a farming population. Of course special provision must be made to relieve purely farm lands of burdensome taxation. The chamber speaks of the heavy cost of policing and giving fire protection to farm districts. It is not to be expected that the police system and the fire protection system and other utilities will be extended all over the farming districts of the county at once. It will take years before they are municipalized, but if annexation is accomplished, their problems can be met as they arise.

The great thing which will be put in the way of accomplishment by annexation will be the co-ordinating of sewers, streets, boulevards, park systems, lighting, water—all the public utilities—with fire protection and police protection. The constable system of the county is woefully insufficient and inefficient for the enforcement of traffic regulations on the highways and thoroughfares and for the prevention of crime.

The crime situation itself calls loudly for the consolidation and co-ordination of police protection. The jurisdiction of the small town is limited. The city police cannot pursue criminals into the county, where they take refuge. The constable system is wholly inadequate to cover the entire county, and has no connection whatsoever with the police system of the city.

The Post-Dispatch, recognizing that there are objections and difficulties to be overcome in the matter of annexation, believes that the elements in the county which oppose it should be given a full hearing and their objections intelligently and impartially considered. Their arguments should be fairly met. When annexation takes place, the great majorities in the city and county should be in favor of it. They should be ready to work together harmoniously for the future great city which will include both city and county.

FAIR SMUGGLERS.

A Pennsylvania woman, caught trying to smuggle in $9500 worth of jewels, was fined $13,000, which she paid while tearfully promising never to do it again. A few days later a Kentucky woman was detected in attempting to evade the duty on dresses valued at $671 and was fined $1600.

These women are described as "society leaders" in their communities, and, of course, are well known. Still, they possess a notoriety now which was not theirs before. When Mrs. Pennsylvania appears at a function blazing with jewels there is a buzz, we venture, which her arrival had not previously occasioned. So, too, with Mrs. Kentucky. They are marked women.

How will they utilize their sparkling or shimmering celebrity? Opportunity is hammering on their doors. Are they bewildered? Would they appreciate a word of advice? Here it is: Run for office. Our politics is corrupt. It needs the purifying tonic of woman's wholesome influence. Go to it. Anyhow, these girls should quit smuggling. That is not their metier.

BROOKHART SPOUTS RED.

The huzzas of victory had hardly died before Col. Brookhart unfurled the red flag at Mason City, Ia., where, addressing the State Federation of Labor, he declared himself unqualifiedly for "co-operative economics."

The term is vague; it is susceptible, we should think, of a variety of meanings. Mr. Brookhart explained his understanding of it. It means limiting the earnings of capital to five per cent. It means putting labor in complete control. Labor would hire capital, instead of capital hiring labor. This plan, he says, has performed wonders in Denmark, has survived famine, pestilence and other ills in Russia, and under its beneficence the speaker predicted the industrial and financial recovery of Germany within 10 years.

But Colonel Brookhart filed one reservation in his indorsement of this Utopian formula. "Farming," he explained, "would be considered a branch of labor." The farmer who owns his farm, we suppose, will not be classified with the hated capitalists. He will not be limited to a five per cent return on his investment. He will not be obliged to turn over his farm to the hired hands. No, sir. Col. Brookhart has no designs on the farmer. He will let the farmer pursue the even furrow of his way, the only unmolested capitalist on the map.

Col. Brookhart, obviously, still realizes he needs the farmer's vote. He is the farmer's friend and will continue to be the farmer's friend—at least till the election.

MR. TAFT'S RECOVERY.

The American people will rejoice to learn that the illness of Chief Justice Taft is not serious and that a thorough summer's rest at Murray Bay will probably restore him to his accustomed health. Although in his sixty-eighth year he has not shown any let-down in his activities, and throughout a long life in the public service he has never spared himself. He appears to have fallen a victim to overexertion and his present illness is a warning that he cannot continue indefinitely to take on obligations outside his regular line of duty.

No one enjoys to a fuller extent the confidence, the respect and even the affection of the American people. His career has been extraordinarily notable, no other President, with the exception of John Quincy Adams, having returned to public office after leaving the White House. Andrew Johnson at the time of his death had been elected to the Senate, but he was dead when Congress met and he never responded to a roll call. Chief Justice Taft is the only man in American history to hold the two most important offices in the Nation. And the American people hope he will be spared for years of further service.

THE LOVELY LADY ASTOR.

Like Ariel, Lady Astor flames amazement. She is, Heaven bless her, never silent. She has wealth, a noble husband and, though she is no longer young, the unique and celebrated beauty of the Langhornes. Even so, her greatest joy is her seat in the House of Commons, where her tongue, in constant movement, exemplifies all the old adages on the subject. Moreover, there are few topics on which she doesn't speak vehemently and with originality. She's amazing. And what could be more amazing than her tirade of yesterday on the subject of race-horse gambling?

Just a few short days ago—could our memory be faulty?—Lady Astor was addressing a group of the more hardboiled of her constituents. We don't know what she was saying, but the Epsom Derby was to be run in a few days, and her hearers wanted nothing but the great lady's opinion on the outcome. Did she say, "Now, boys, gambling isn't good for you"? Quite the contrary, she gave them her own private selection. If we are not mistaken the horse she said would win the Derby is running yet.

So did Lady Astor compromise with the devil. But more. Her husband, Lord Astor, owns the third largest racing stable in England. His is one of the great names in the game. This point, of course, was raised to confound her. Lady Astor is unconfoundable. "It is well known," said she, "that Lord Astor never bets."

We will, however, wager a lipstick against a copy of the annual report of the League of Women Voters that Lady Astor doesn't get to first base in her latest crusade.

A German has found a way to make silk from lobster claws. Will a sow's ear be next?

NOW, JUDGE!

Enter Judge Gary in a new role, this time of a lofty idealist. He ventured the roseate idea in New York at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon, that if all the steel men in the world should stand together for the prevention of war, they could make war difficult, if not impossible. Yes, and IF all the pawnbrokers should combine against money-lending, it would be mighty hard to hock the old watch. The venerable Pooh-Bah of steel, ladies and gentlemen, was kidding himself at that luncheon.

IT DOESN'T PAY.

THE PENNSYLVANIA TOGA.

JUST A MINUTE

Written for the Post-Dispatch
By CLARK McADAMS

THE SATURDAY CONFERENCE.

Socrates was in the chair this morning when the two-story thinkers met under the cartoon. He wanted to know if there is any significance in the very slight indignation over what has happened in Pennsylvania and the very great indignation over what has happened in Iowa.

Socrates: Does it not seem to you that whatever money does is condoned, despite its consequences?

Good Reprint: Certainly. But let the people lift their hands against the oligarchy of money, as for instance in Iowa, and there is a tremendous protest.

Mr. Antwine: Don't you imagine that this is because the millionaires who were running in the Pennsylvania primary are patriots, whereas the poor farmers who voted for Brookhart are reds and socialists?

Socrates: It is something like that. I notice that the average editorial upon Iowa is very long and quite definite, whereas those upon Pennsylvania are shorter and dulled by doubt.

Mr. Antwine: Precisely. The big rich and the interests with which they are identified can do what they please, but let us protest against their highhandedness and we are branded as socialists. What did it cost us to protest against the oil leases and the bribery of Fall? We lost the next national election by the biggest majority in our history and we have had ever since a Government frankly in the interest of big business.

Lord Howe Dumb: Perhaps Brookhart is so widely despised because he did not have any money to spend.

Socrates: You said more than you meant to say there, my dear Dumb.

Thrasymachus: What do you think of the comparative significance of the two phenomena, Socrates?

Socrates: To me that in Pennsylvania is vastly more important. The people of Iowa have been like this for a long time. We have with us always in this great country an agricultural element in protest against the excesses of industry. It gets nowhere, and it will not get anywhere. The farmer is outmanned and outmoneyed. He can never be a business man. He can never write his own sale ticket. He can never organize a monopoly. A tariff does him no good. He is competing with farmers all over the world, all quite as helpless as he is, all either become or becoming peasants. The Pennsylvania matter is something we have not had. It is something new. If we are going to put public office up to the highest bidder, perhaps something can be done about that. It is for this reason important. All prior election scandals have been nothing to this. Suppose we permitted such a custom to spread; that in every state the outcome of an election was among a few rich men; that fitness aside, money alone decided the issue!

Socrates: Very well. The conference stands adjourned.

"How far out in the country do you live?"
"A gallon of gas each way."

Sir: I think Mr. Antwine got hold of something very interesting the other day. Had he felt like consuming a little more space, he doubtless would have reminded us, too, that the Ranaissance resulted from the wars with the Saracens. When the crusaders went into the Levant they found a finer culture than their own—that is, the Arabic. They brought home from that contact ideas which resulted in the great awakening. A comparison of the warlike British and the pacific Chinese makes the point. It was the point that Col. Roosevelt tried to make. He did not want us to become chinafied, as he termed it. He wanted us to go out and knock somebody's block off, or get our own knocked off, and thus grow. The French have been fighting ever since Caesar wrote his commentaries. They are at it now. Yet the French are easily the most civilized people. It is not, as Mr. Antwine says, a nice thing to admit that war has this virtue, but history says so.

Aside from the misspelled word, too, there is something or other out of order with this slogan. If he is referring to the pies served, it simply states a true fact.

CALIFORNIA EARTHQUAKES.

PROF. HENRY S. PRITCHETT in Scribner's Magazine for June.

WE know now that these movements of the earth's crust, commonly called earthquakes, are among the most usual and natural of all the phenomena of our globe. They occur in every part of the world. Between 10,000 and 20,000 such movements in the earth's crust are recorded annually on the seismographs scattered over the earth's surface. Nothing is more in accordance with the process of nature than these earth movements. • • • An earthquake is simply an elastic shock which originates in a slip along some fault where the rocks have been held by friction, under increasing strain, until they yield and send vibrations sometimes far along the surface, sometimes through the globe. This last would be impossible if the interior of the earth were liquid. The transmission of the earthquake vibrations is itself one of the proofs of the solidity of the earth. The only message we ever get from the depths of the earth are those that the earthquake vibrations carry. • • • The earthquake as it exists along the Pacific belongs to the minor risks of life, scarcely comparable in danger to the lightning strokes of summer storms. Against this risk the prudent dweller in this region will provide by building a good honest house and then forget there is any earthquake hazard. Once in a lifetime he may have the experience of such an adventure as San Francisco and Santa Barbara have experienced, but he will regard it as one of the small risks incident to life in this world, and will bless his good fortune in dwelling in a land where the lightning seldom strikes and the tornado does not twist.

THE ART OF CONVERSATION.

From the New York World.

MR. ALBERT J. NOCK, in the current Harper's Magazine, takes our country to task for its ineptness at conversation. Did he say this much and stop we should readily agree, for out of all the talk that floats down the wind on these shores precious little is worth listening to. But he does not stop there; he rashly announces what conversation depends on; and this appears, is a copiousness or generality of ideas as distinguished from particular ideas, and an imagination able to marshal them. Here we dissent. Ideas, whether general or particular, are the death of conversation, no matter how politely they are defended. They produce, in essence, what we Americans call a "bum argument." Conversation depends on one thing: high good humor. It is not enough that the speakers be in good humor; this will produce amiable banalities, but nothing more. They must be in high good humor, in that state of mind where the world seems to be spinning just a little faster than it was. Then, when wit spurns to be only funny and the whip-cracker that turns a quip into an uproarious crack, too noisy to be dignified, too trivial to be chronicled. Then, when the company be a group of ditch-diggers or poets, conversation will reach its highest heights, and some part of it will be worth hearing.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Operations for the rise gained momentum in rather active trading in today's short session of the stock market. A rush of covering by shorts in the last few minutes pushed several of the market leaders to within a few points of the high levels recorded in the great bull market that collapsed in February and March. Although several industrials attracted attention, the most pronounced group strength was in the railroad shares with some of the leading favorites selling within a short distance of the highest prices recorded since the war. Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Atlantic Coast Line and Delaware & Hudson were favored. Prospects of continued easy money helped the bond market, where a generally firm undertone prevailed.

• • •

Morgan Stocks Again in Lead.

"Expectations of a setback on profit taking over the week end failed to materialize when the recent market leaders again showed unusual strength. Speculators for the decline who had looked for a turn in the market around mid-week, and had sold stocks in anticipation of lower prices were forced to take losses in several of the high priced industrials. Most prominent in the upturn were the so-called Morgan stocks, U. S. Steel and General Motors. General Motors crossed 137, while Steel advanced to within a point of 136, the price at which the shares were offered to employes on a profit-sharing basis earlier in the year. This point was regarded as the objective of the bulls who believed much higher prices could be obtained if that level were crossed. New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and other rail stocks also were in good demand at higher levels, demonstrating that covering by shorts was not the only factor instrumental in pushing values higher.

• • •

Other Points of Strength.

"Coincident with advances in leading rail shares, buying developed in larger volume in several of the equipment stocks and advances were recorded. Several specialties also improved, while mercantile and food shares were firmer. California Packing responded to announcement of a 100 per cent stock dividend with a rise of more than three points and some of the chain stores worked forward. U. S. Rubber rallied a point or so. Not all speculative favorites were pushed forward, however, for pressure was again exerted against International Cumbusion. It fell back somewhat.

• • •

Clearing House Statement.

"Preparations for the June 15 tax settlements and dividend payments were indicated in the weekly statement of the Clearing House banks, revealing a deficit in reserves of $7,411,520 and a decrease in surplus of $19,140,000. Loans, discounts, etc., decreased $5,839,000."

• • •

Break in Norwegian Krone.

"The only feature of a quiet market in foreign exchanges was a break of 40 points in Norwegian krone in which most of the week's advance was lost. French, Belgium and Italian rates tended to drift slightly lower, but pressure was not urgent and the volume of business was small. Dealing in other exchanges were light and fluctuations held within narrow limits. Sterling was steady, while Spanish rates improved somewhat."

BOND TRADING IS QUIET ON NEW YORK EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Bond prices marked time in today's quiet trading, with the market generally holding close to the year's high level.

Trading activity was about evenly divided between the foreign and domestic groups, with few significant changes recorded. In the foreign list the strength of German and Japanese issues counteracted the heaviness of French and Polish bonds. Rheinelbe 7s and Electric Power Corporation of Germany 6½s were active and higher.

Price movements elsewhere followed the same tendencies which have marked recent trading. Some rails moved ahead under the leadership of the seaboard issues and moderate gains were registered by Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s. National Dairy Products 6s and Toledo Traction 5½s. Interborough 7s were heavy and some of the Western railroad liens lost ground on profit-taking.

COTTON PRICES EASE AFTER EARLY RALLY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Sharp declines in the cotton market the past two days were followed by moderate rallies at the opening today. Liverpool did not fully respond to Friday's decline here, and the local opening was steady, at an advance of two to seven points, on covering for over the week-end. Otherwise there appeared to be very little buying, and prices soon eased off, owing to continued favorable weather in the South and improving crop accounts.

July declined from 17.74c to 17.58c and December from 16.41c to 16.24c, active months showing net declines of seven to 10 points at the end of the first hour.

The early decline extended to 17.47c for July and 16.16c for December, net losses of about 15 to 19 points and new low records for the season on all positions. Covering became more active around these figures, although there was no change in the general character of the news. Rallies of 10 or 15 points were not fully maintained, but the forenoon market was quieter. December closed at 16.25c, the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 2 to 15 points.

SETBACK TO WHEAT PRICES AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 12.—General selling, in which houses with eastern connections took the lead, brought about a decided setback in wheat prices today. Buying support was lacking. Harvesting was reported to be making rapid progress in the Southwest with favorable weather and an increased movement of wheat to primary centers was looked for. There were beneficial rains in the American Northwest and also in Canada. Wheat closed weak, 1¼c to 2c net lower, corn ½c to 1c down, oats ⅜c to 1¼c off and provisions unchanged to 30c lower.

Wheat closed weak, 1¼c to 2c net lower; corn ½c to 1c downe; oats ⅜c to 1¼c off and provisions unchanged to 30c lower.

Interest of wheat traders centered largely on news from Kansas. Trade reports indicated that Southern Kansas where the harvest is beginning has a good yield in sight. Advices at hand said the crop is made, and will average 12 bushels to the acre. Recent rains prevented further injury.

Firmness of wheat quotations at Liverpool acted as something of an offset to improved domestic crop reports from the Southwest. It was pointed out in this connection that, whereas during the greater part of last year United States wheat prices ruled equal to or higher than Liverpool values, thereby preventing ready movement of American supplies, Chicago July wheat at present is 25c to 30c under Liverpool, apparently promising a stable basis now for export business.

WILD GEESE

CHAPTER NINETEEN.

When the rain had gone, the evening was as soundless and clear as if it stood over a newly created earth. Lind and Mark walked down the wood road, leading their horses. Above the darkening cedars the moon rose, and the night opened upon them like a tender, gloomed flower. They moved together involuntarily. Lind looked up and saw his face clear and intent upon her in the ashy light. His absorption was gone now. He was all human and very near to her. They stood still in the road and looked at each other. The moonlight seemed to form a globe over them, locking out every alien sound. Without a word Lind went to him. His arms, his breast and his lips possessed her. She yielded herself to the dark, warm entirety of him, knowing the full moment.

On the day that Caleb was expected home, Mrs. Sandbo became suddenly aware that life was tedious. True, Mrs. Thorvaldson over westward was "expecting," and she, Mrs. Sandbo, would be present at her confinement, but that was at least two weeks off. No wind of gossip had blown her way for a long time, no choice morsel of scandal had fallen into her hands to knead aand reshape. The teacher, who must surely hear things, was not the one to recount them generously. On the day that Caleb was expected home, then, Mrs. Sandbo's curiosity won her over to its side completely.

Sven having gone to Yellow Post, she maneuvered the cattle into Gares' hayfield and proceeded in an elaborately unscientific manner to herd them out. Lind, watching her flying across the east field, wondered what her purpose was in driving them toward the Gares'. Presently the scheme behind it became obvious to her, and she smiled to herself.

When Mrs. Sandbo had finally cornered the beasts up against the fence, Martin came to her rescue and opened the gate into the yard, through which she drove the cattle, heading them toward the road. Then she turned, panting, with a hand on her chest, to see who was about. Lind, who had been looking at Ellen's sweet pea vines, came toward her and smiled a greeting.

Mrs. Sandbo responded absently, apparently overcome at finding herself at last on the spot where she had craved to be. She looked past the teacher toward the house with eyes greedy for revelations.

"And where is Mrs. Gare—and the girls?" she asked, her words stumbling over each other with eagerness. While she talked, she noticed the garden with its clean, straight rows, the new wagon shed, and the plump white leghorns tilting tail as they pecked and scratched in the screened yard. Her cows had ambled out into the road, but they could wait.

"Ellen is working indoors, Mrs. Sandbo," Lind told her. "Judith is at Yellow Post and Mrs. Gare is busy at something." She knew Amelia would be embarrased at finding the woman here.

"Vell—issnt'—vell!" Mrs. Sandbo found no expression for her feelings at the moment. She was too disconcerted at seeing no one rush to meet her, as she would have done had a caller approached her home under such circumstances, that it did not occur to her at once to turn to the house.

Before she could say any more, Mrs. Gare came into sight among the outbuildings, her white apron gathered up in front of her and bulging roundly. Amelia shielded her eyes with her free hand as she approached them.

"Vell—vell—Mrs. Gare," said Mrs. Sandbo, in the manner she used in her own parlor among the bright brown leather furniture and the looming photographs of all the Sandbos. "You look just like you alvays vass! My, vhat eggs! Do you get so many every—ver day?" Her eyes traveled quickly over Amelia's dress, her shoes, the look of her face.

Amelia smiled, glancing with amusement at Lind. She had never cared particularly for Mrs. Sandbo on the two or three occasions when she had met her before, but she would nevertheless have liked to ask her in, were it not for her old fear of Caleb's criticism. "Not every day," she replied. "And how are you keeping, Mrs. Sandbo?"

"Oh, me, I'm not vell lately. Since he vent it's been purty hard. A farm goes up—phoo!—vit'out a man. Sven, he's got no use for the place after he been to town. He vill back—and vhat can a poor voman do?" She glanced disconsolately toward the house. Was not Amelia going to ask her in?

"Yes, it must be hard for you," Amelia said. She looked toward Mrs. Sandbo's cattle scattering in the road.

"I had such a time to get those lubbers out of your field, Mrs. Gare! They vill after sweet hay. I have Sven fix the fence vhere they got through. And vhere is the girls?" she asked, sweeping the place with a sharp look. She had heard Lind's reply to that question well enough.

Amelia told her.

"Oh, Ellen iss sewing? New summer dresses, now, maybe?"

"Well—not exactly. How is Dora?"

"Oh, that one," Mrs. Sandbo composed herself with her hands across her waist, glad of an inexhaustible subject. She had a feeling that was nettling and at the same time gratifying because of its implication, that Amelia was trying to get rid of her. "Vhat a life she hess! Vit' such a man! I alvays says to her, I says, you have no bissness to marry him. But she hess her vay, and now you see vhat it iss! She vass a purty girl. Dora, and a good girl. Everybody vass after her, in Loyola vhere she vaited on table. But vhat can you say to them—the young ones! Sven—he vill run off and marry some dirt, too, maybe. If Judith" (she pronounced it Yudit) "vill not look on him. Hee, hee! Vhat you t'ink of dose two, Mrs. Gare?" She tittered at Lind, and looked again toward the house. Surely now that this much had been said, Mrs. Gare could do nothing but ask her in. A cup of coffee, anyway.

"I don't think Dora is so badly off, Mrs. Sandbo," Lind said, "now that I've seen her. I think her husband looks like a good man."

"Hm! You don't yet know him."

Amelia took a securer grip on the eggs in her apron. Lind touched Mrs. Sandbo's arm. "Let me help you drive the cows home, Mrs. Sandbo. They'll be all over the place in a minute."

"I hope you get them in safe," Mrs. Gare smiled. "Good-by, Mrs. Sandbo."

On the way down the road Mrs. Sandbo could not contain her chagrin and amazement at the fact that she had not been invited into the Gare household.

"Iss it him? Iss she so scared of him that she can't ask a neighbor in to coffee?" she demanded of Lind.

"I think it's because he's away," said Lind, clearing her throat.

"Vell—so I vill come one day vhen he iss home. The stinker!" she said emphatically.

Mrs. Sando was well acquaintad with the situation on the Gare farm, but occasionally when life hung dully about her, she liked to regale herself by freshening her knowledge of the state of affairs. So that now she was doubly shaken, first by her renewed awe at the tyranny of Caleb Gare, secondly by the personal affront she had suffered.

Judith had not counted on finding Sven at Yellow Post. Somehow he had gone out of her mind, to give place to that dark thing that had agonized her thoughts ever since she had overheard the conversation between Amelia and Caleb. For some reason unknown to herself she was wretchedly unworthy, even to live.

Sven was hiring a halfbreed for the haying time when Judith first saw him. Out of the corner of her eye she watched his dominating gestures, watched him flip a match out of the open window with a male grace that tantalized her. It was only necessary to see him, then . . . She hated herself suddenly.

He turned and saw her, leaning against the enormous vinegar barrel near the counter. The corners of her lips tightened, and she looked away. Sven dismissed the halfbreed with a word and sauntered lazily toward her.

"So that was all you wanted me for, eh?" he mocked. He strove to look indifferent, but his lips worked nervously. "Well—it's all right with me. I just want to know where I stand."

"Listen, Jude. I mean what I say. You make up your mind one way or the other, and meet me at the water hole in the bush. I'm not throwing myself around like a fool for anybody. Be there for the cattle, tonight."

"Not tonight—tomorrow night," Judith said shortly, and turned to Johanneson.

Perplexed, Sven went away. He could swear in his heart that Judith loved him. But she was strange. What on earth had he done to make her avoid him? Nothing that she herself had not provoked. He was half tempted to force her to ride home with him, to frighten her into submission, as he had done. . . . The morning was pure and mobile with a soft wind. It would be sweet riding together. He would tell her again of the town where he had worked, and where he would take her when they were married. He would—oh, what was the use? She, likely as not, would lash him across the face with her whip if he spoke to her again that day.

Judith rode home in a flux of emotions. To demand of Amelia what there was to prevent her marrying Sven might perhaps lead to the unfolding of secrets that would forever bind her to the life of the farm. And yet, this agitation of the spirit would not cease until she knew.

As she jogged along in the cart, her eyes idled across the flat, unsurprising earth that went on and on into the north with scarcely a perceptible undulation. Here was the bush land, without magnificence, without primitive redundance of growth: here was the prairie, spare as an empty platter—no, there was the solitary figure of a man upon it, like a meager offering of earth to heaven. Here were the little wood trails and prairie trails that a few men had made on lonely journeyings, and here the crossings where they had met to exchange a word or two. The sky above it all was blue and tremendous, a vast country for proud birds that were ever on the wing, seeking, seeking. And a little delicate wind that was like a woman. Judge thought to herself, but could in a moment become a male giant violating the earth.

She could find the sky and the wind in a more profuse place, where life was like silk, and she belonged there. She would have to ask Amelia what that was. • • •

Amelia was spraying lice powder on the interior of the chicken coop when Judith returned. The girl stood at the door and watcher her for a while in silence, then told her there was no mail. Amelia had not expected any. There never was any mail with any meaning for her. She went on with her task without comment.

"What were you talking about with him that night you told him about Sven?" Judith asked abruptly.

Amelia had her back to her and did not turn. . . . .

"Why—I can't remember anything special," she replied slowly. "He wouldn't listen to it, of course."

"There's something else—I heard you. I have to know right now what it is," Judith kept on.

Amelia faced her. "I guess you heard what he said about my family," she began haltingly. "He's always reminding me that he came from better people than I did. He makes my parents out a lot worse than they were—they were only poor, nothing worse. You know how he is, Judie. That was all."

The chicken coop smelt pungently of lime. It was suffocating. But Amelia apparently did not notice it. Judith looked at her hard for a moment. Amelia's face was blank. She turned again and continued spraying the roosts.

Judith turned doubtfully away. It was like Caleb to make a great to-do over so little, but——

In the chicken coop Amelia's hands were inert. She set the spray down. Judith had not heard Caleb's reference to Mark Jordan, then. She would have to submit to anything hereafter rather than create a scene that would lead to disaster.

The next day Caleb returned. He had shoes for Judith, stout leather things with room for heavy woolen stockings. There would be another winter.

To Be Continued.

Home-Making Helps

The Emergency Shelf.

No one realizes more keenly than the up-to-date housekeeper, the extreme friendliness of the emergency shelf. Company is apt to appear at any time, and even the best of housewives is not always ready for entertaining.

Never have there been so many goodies with which to stock a shelf as there are today. Every course from "soup to nuts" is provided for and a quickly prepared meal of excellence is the result of a raid on the shelf.

When stocking her shelf the wise woman tries out various brands of a food and stocks that which is most satisfactory, with recipes at hand for its preparation. Can cookery is a bit different from fresh food cookery and must be studied a bit before one can be sure of a successful outcome. Many of the foods are already cooked, or partially so, and need only warming before serving. Sometimes they must be warmed in the can before opening, but they must not be overcooked.

Ready-made French dressing and mayonnaise are a boon for the salad course. A well filled spice box, bottle of curry powder, several of the better store sauces and dried flavorings are invaluable aids in this special branch of cookery. Excellent beef tea cubes make good foundation for a quick brown sauce. Canned spaghetti, ready to heat and serve, makes another dish excellent to help out the meal.

So many delicious things are prepared and put up in glass that it is an easy matter to find whatever one may need for an emergency. Lobster, shrimp, crab-flakes, creamed chicken, vegetables of all sorts are to be had, and make a valuable addition to the emergency shelf.

Canned fruits and puddings, even pudding sauces come in tins, should also be on hand to eke out the dessert, and with the popularity of the delicatessen stores, one is never at a loss when unexpected guests arrive.

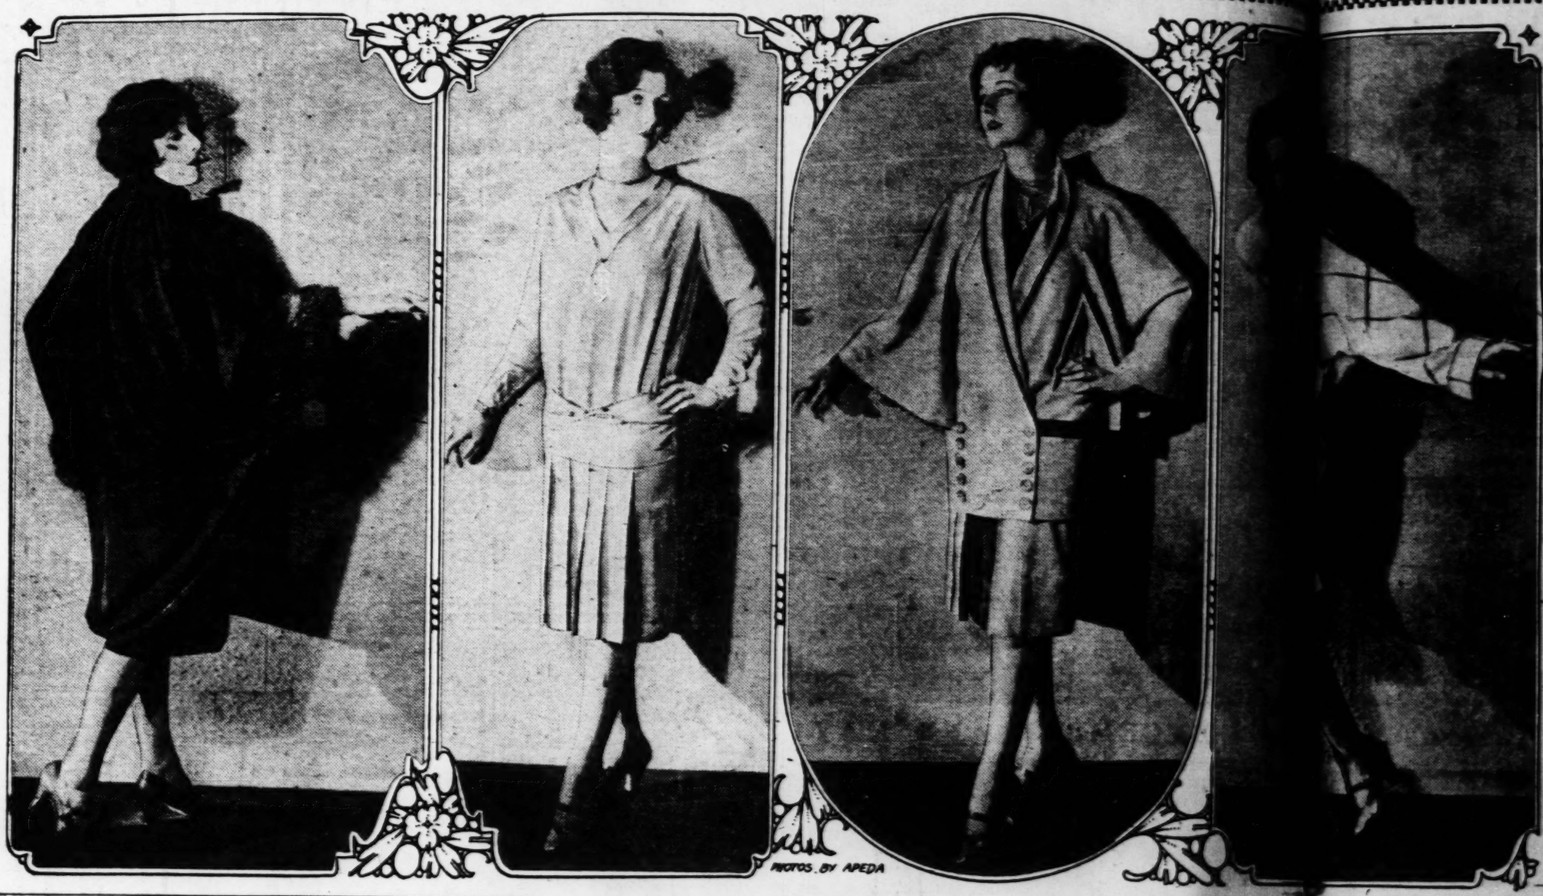

The Housewives' Scrapbook

Leather furniture should not be covered with slip covers, as the linen, or cotton fabric rubbing against the leather will injure it.

Next—Two-piece suit of natural kasha, with a novel military cape in lieu of sleeves, and smart roll collar and novel pockets trimmed in red. The jacket is hip length and is double-breasted.

Right—A smart cape coat for sport wear or traveling, of pink and tan check. The cape is buttoned at the sides to give the effect of sleeve. Note the novel double pocket. The collar is of natural lynx.

Peter's Hunt for Perfume

Be not too ready to believe;
There's always those who will deceive.
—Peter Rabbit.

PETER RABBIT had to admit that Redwing the Blackbird was right in saying that there wouldn't be any fun in living if one knew all there was to know, and that it is finding out new things that brings much of joy into life. But Peter is lazy. While he dearly loves to find out things and poke his wabbly little nose into other people's business, he likes to find out things in the easiest way possible; and if he can get somebody to tell him a thing he always will. When Redwing asked him if he had ever smelled the perfume of a butterfly Peter thought at first that Redwing was joking. But before he could ask any questions Redwing had flown away and left Peter stewing in his own curiosity.

"I don't believe that butterflies have any perfume," declared Peter. "No, sir, I don't believe that butterflies carry any perfume." Without realizing it he spoke aloud.

"Chuga-rum!" said a deep, gruff voice. "Some people don't know as much as they might, and it is just because they won't believe." It was Grandfather Frog speaking.

"Chuga-rum, I didn't say they did. You find out for yourself," replied Grandfather Frog and dived into the Smiling Pool with a great splash.

Peter waited around, hoping Grandfather Frog would reappear. But he didn't. All the time Peter's curiosity kept growing greater and greater and greater. Sitting up to look over the Green Meadows, Peter discovered a butterfly visiting a clover blossom not far away. Instantly he kicked up his long heels and away he went, lipperty-lipperty-lip, straight over to that clover blossom. Just before he reached it away flew the butterfly to another blossom some distance off. Away went Peter after it, lipperty-lipperty-lip. The same thing happened over again. Peter simply couldn't catch up with that butterfly.

Then he saw another butterfly at a distance and decided he would try that one. Perhaps that one wouldn't be so easily frightened. Away he went, lipperty-lipperty-lip, and just before he reached the butterfly away went the latter, flitter-flutter-flitter. Peter got excited. Such a performance you never have seen. He raced this way and that way over the Green Meadows, chasing butterflies and never catching them. And it was such a careless thing to do. You see, he was so intent on catching a butterfly that he quite forgot to watch for enemies. It was lucky for him, very lucky, indeed, that none of his enemies happened to be about that day.

"Do you mean, Grandfather Frog, that butterflies carry perfume!" demanded Peter

Finally Peter had to sit down and rest. He was quite out of breath. Yes, sir, he was quite out of breath. And it seemed to him that the moment he sat down to rest all the butterflies also stopped to rest. The truth is, they were all visiting the flowers and sipping sweets therefrom, as is the way of butterflies. But to Peter it seemed as if they just stopped to tease him.

"I don't believe they have any perfume. No, sir, I don't believe they have any perfume," declared Peter.

"Who are you talking about?" said a small voice in Peter's ear, and a butterfly fluttered just in front of him in a most tantalizing way.

"I'm talking about you butterflies," replied Peter. "Redwing the Blackbird told me that you have perfume, and I don't believe it."

"It's easy enough to find out," said the butterfly. "Why don't you smell of us and find out?" And then that butterfly most saucily went away, flitter-fluter-flitter.

Silk for the Jumper Dress

By JANET WINSLOW

THE jumper dress, this spring and summer, is all over the place as an ordinary expression might put it. Why, it is so prevalent that a cursory examination of the things that are in the shops would lead one to believe there is nothing else. Of course this is not exactly the case, but it might just as well be. The jumper is so popular and has been found to be, upon closer study, so universally becoming that it has just swept the feminine portion of the population.

It all depends upon how a jumper dress is proportioned to determine the fact of whether it will be becoming or not. Study its lines with relation to your own and you will soon discover that it can be composed most artistically to hide your worst defects and play up your most salient good points.

Now, of course, the flat crepe and the crepe de chine are the most favored of materials to be used for this purpose. But there are many others and new ones with many points in their favor as against the accepted crepes just mentioned.

An end-to-end silk is a new one. This has a fine striped appearance, almost invisible and yet plain enough to take it out of the plain surfaced class. It is a nice feeling silk to wear besides and the colors are lovely—just right, in fact, for the purpose in question.

They are making the jumper frocks out of crepe georgette, and these are lovely, too. They are soft in texture, becoming in line and most flattering to the rounding curves of one's figure.

Then there are the men's shirting materials. These are most interesting when made up in jumper styles, for the stripes and patterns are so arranged that they make a nice design and they lift the frock out of the category of extreme plainness, which may be a relief to some.

Of course, the plain shirting silks are just as good as those which are patterned. They are popular in every sense of the word.

The printed silks are excellent for this purpose, and they make fascinating looking pictures for the girl who can get away with a poster effect. For the one, however, who is smaller and less conspicuous in her style there are the small patterned all-over, old-fashioned prints, which are just as good and better even for her own particular purposes.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

Riches.

SOME count their wealth in bonds and stocks, in treasures stored away in vaults behind great bars and locks, secure from light of day. Some count their wealth in pride and fame for all the world to prize, in luster of a shining name to dazzle others' eyes. But Bill and Jim are naught for lure of gold or worldly show; and yet they are (of this I'm sure) the richest chaps I know! To all the truest wealth of Earth they are the happy heirs; to all the things of honest worth, the very world is theirs! For Jimmy has a kiddie-car and Bill his ball and bat; what more could any eager heart demand of bliss than that? You ask the richest chaps I know? For wealth worth more than gold seek Jim, turned four not long ago, and Bill, just six years old!

Summer Care of Silver

If you are making canton flannel cases for the silverware select a colored flannel. This is preferable, not only because it does not soil as readily as the white, but in the latter the sulphur in the bleach tends to tarnish the silver rather than protect it.

If you have not cases clean the silver and wrap it in tissue paper to exclude all air, then pack it in cardboard. You will find it untarnished when you return home in the fall. A piece of camphor gum placed in the box or drawer will further retard the process of tarnishing.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Cheerful Loser.

VERILY, my daughter, in a summer love-affair, as in any other gamble, a Good Sport and a Cheerful Loser are the only winners.

• • •

• • •

But, she that clingeth and refuseth to be shaken off is like unto a hair that sticketh unto wet fingers, and as painful as a pebble in the shoe.

• • •

For, unto a man, the charm of a summer flirtation is not security but novelty and not continuity but elasticity.

• • •

Then, come not unto me, saying, "Alas, yesterday did he love me and pursue me with pleadings and protestations!

• • •

"And wherefore doth he not love me and pursue me, today?"

• • •

Yesterday did he not consume the seven-course dinner with zest and enthusiasm.

• • •

Yet, why shall he be hungry this morning?

• • •

Lo, yesterday, did not the rain fall and the winds blow and the waves beat upon the shore?

• • •

Yet, why shall it, therefore, be stormy today?

• • •

Last night did not the moon shine upon the water and glorify the world?

• • •

Yet, who shall say that there will be moonlight, tonight?

• • •

For, verily, the weather and the human heart are two things whereof not even the soothsayers and the psycho-analysts possess foreknowledge.

• • •

And the only thing CONSTANT about the moon or a man's love is its constant CHANGE!

• • •

Then, I charge thee, at the first sigh of weariness, be thou ready to offer thy Beloved the "change" which his spirit craveth.

• • •

Behold, if thou hast regaled him upon honeyed words and hot air, revive his soul with the sauce piquant of neglect and the cold tea of uncertainty. If thou hast fed him upon applesauce and warm responses, change his diet to the iced sweetness of indifference.

• • •

For, constant devotion and too much sugar are cloying; and a little caviar and spice are a pleasant variety.

• • •

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

Summer Menus at Small Cost

SUMMER is the time to live healthily, happily and at small cost. We may cut the meat bill to a quarter the usual amount and not miss it. Two vegetable dinners, two fish dinners, a chicken dinner, an egg and nut dinner, a spaghetti and cheese dinner don't sound like starvation, and the butcher furnishes but one dinner during the week.

First Vegetable Dinner.
Jellied Tomato Soup.
Peas, Scalloped Potatoes, Fried Cauliflower, Sweet and Sour Beets.
Pulled Bread.
Hearts of Lettuce, French Dressing.
Brown Betty Pudding, Hard Sauce.

Second Vegetable Dinner.
Fresh Cream of Pea Soup.
Baked Asparagus, Stuffed and Baked Tomatoes, Boiled Onions.
Corn Muffins.
Watercress and onion salad.
Lemon Pie.

The vegetables for either dinner may be prepared in the morning and the dinner gotten in a half to three-quarters of an hour. For the pulled bread, take a small fresh baker's loaf, trim off all the crust, then with a fork pull off good-sized pieces and just before dinner put them in the oven to heat through and lightly brown. Cheese may be added to the escalloped potatoes, if liked. A cheese dressing may be used with the salad instead of a plain French dressing.

In the second dinner, the asparagus is boiled tender before it is put on a buttered baking dish, dusted with pepper and salt, dotted thickly with butter and sprinkled lightly with a few crumbs mixed with a little grated cheese, then browned quickly in the oven.

First Fish Dinner.
Shrimp Canape.
Baked Fillet of Sole.
Baked Potatoes, Boiled Asparagus.
Cucumber Salad.
Fruit Pie.

Second Fish Dinner.
Cold Clam Broth.
Curried Lobster.
Potato Salad, Peas.
Hot Biscuits.
Fruit Cobbler, Hard Sauce.

The chicken dinner should be cooked after the manner best liked in the family, with appropriate vegetables, a simple salad and a home-made ice cream dessert.

Nut and Egg Dinner.
Cold Chicken Broth.
Eggs in Tomato Curry.
Baked Potatoes, Summer Squash.
Deviled Egg Salad with Walnuts.
Floating Island.

Spaghetti and Cheese Dinner.
Sardine Canape.
Spaghetti in Italian Dressing.
Baked Onions.
Rolls.
Tomato and Cucumber Salad.
Strawberry Shortcake.

The summer squash may be boiled and mashed, or it may be baked in the shell. For the deviled egg salad, the eggs are deviled as usual, then they are chilled. When ready, slice the eggs onto the lettuce, strew with finely chopped walnuts and mask with mayonnaise.

A very smart ensemble costume is of mouse gray with a tunic coat banded with black astrakhan, the fur also forming the collar and facing. The dress is of gray and black satin, and a chic black and gray felt hat completes the ensemble.

Removing Road Oils.

NOW is the time when the good housewife has her troubles on account of the tar and road oils so assiduously and generously applied to streets.

Even with the utmost care these substances are tracked over the rugs and carpets. To remove these stains any one of the following agents will give satisfactory results: Turpentine, benzoil, chloroform or carbon tetrachlorid.

Soak a cloth in the turpentine, or whichever agent you select, and thoroughly rub the stained spot, changing to a fresh cloth when the one used becomes disclored. Continue rubbing as long as any color comes off. A final scrubbing with hot water and soap will effectually remove the stain.

Florentien of Veal.

Take a veal kidney, fat and all, and mince it very fine. Add a half cupful of fresh sweet herbs chopped fine, or a tablespoonful of powdered dried sweet herbs, a half cupful of well-washed dried currants, salt, pepper, a teaspoonful of sugar, a finely chopped tart apple, a saltspoonful each of cloves, nutmeg and mace, a cupful of very fine crumbs, a tablespoonful of chopped candied lemon peel, the yolks of three beaten eggs, a wineglass of orange-flower water, and the same of homemade wine. Line a deep dish with good pie crust, put in the mixture, cover with a thin top crust with vents in it and bake for an hour. When done, sprinkle with a little sugar and serve hot.

The Man on the Sandbox

by L. C. Davis

THE PASSING SHOW.

IF Babe keeps up his present lick,
He'll make the home-run record sick
Despite the "slower" ball;
And when the time has come to sign,
To Huggins he will talk a line
Of turkey in the fall.

For, Babe's emolument depends
Quite largely on the way he sends
The ball across the fence.
And, hence, his object is to kill
The justly celebrated pill,
Regardless of expense.

Despite few ups and many downs,
Ban Johnson seems to like the Browns
The way he sticks around;
And fans declare in wonderment
That for absorbing punishment,
The Prexy is a hound.
